Well John,
It is nice to know there are some intelligent people here.
He could have just picked up an allergy medication and read the ingredients to see all the things being ingested. Almost all medications, prescription or not, have a radical of some sort attached.
I chew Tums like candy for the Calcium, not the Carbonate that is attached.
Benadryl, Diphenhydramine HCl helps me to sleep, thanks to a radical, HCl.
I guess Nurk is a write off.

Now that I have some of the Nurk's marked I know a bit more about who to talk to on here.

I actually wanted to see if this group had anything related to shortwave for my Hammarlund to chase down. I have the speaker output hooked to a 4 channel scope so I would be looking for telemetry or anything unusual.

"isomerize"?, "cis-trans", "bio-availability"?

That certainly is a lot of techno-babble to rationalize an illegal activity and to justify being a doper/druggie.

You ridicule others for being addicted to tobacco and alcohol while you seem to be equally addicted to that drug monkey on -your- back.

I can't believe the childish carp coming from some of the ultra left wingnuts. Crying because Chicago lost the bid, they fall back on their familiar "Blame Bush" mantra and blame it all on him. At least the New York Times had it right this time: it was heavy handed travel regulations that made the committee look elsewhere - regulations that Obama has the power to change.

When is the Obama cadre going to take responsibility for its own actions? Blaming Bush is getting to be really, really old.

Obama did get a sovenier in Copenhagen - a t-shirt which says "I visited Copenhagen but the only thing I got was this lousy t-shirt."

Net neutrality is a good thing, to be sure. It's very democratic.

It is, however, very difficult to implement, given the real world limitations of net distribution systems.

Heavy users downloading hd movies and tv shows, playing high speed games requiring large amounts of bandwidth, can cause performance problems for other users on the radius as the bandwidth limitations of the network are approached. In the case of Comcast or ATT U-Verse, this can actually cause TV performance compromises for users who are very light internet users, but pay heavily for cable TV. I've experienced this in prime time at my g/f's house with Comcast.

Bandwidth limitations are necessary to prevent a few heavy users from compromising the performance of other users who equally pay the costs. Though Comcast abuses the privilege, to be sure.

Further, bandwidth limitations prevent residential users, on less efficient pipes, from using the net for high bandwidth businesses, like hosting FTP sites, as I do on my T-1, video streams, and other servers. Again consuming the bandwidth of other users. Compromising their service, for which they pay.

Eventually, as networks are improved, this will become a non-issue, but the reality is, that for now, real world limitations necessitate some kinds of bandwidth limitations for some users.
There are certainly better ways to do it than many of the ways that are being employed today, but that doesn't obviate the necessity.

Censorship is an entirely different matter. And there is no reason for AT&T, Comcast or even Megapath, my T-1 carrier, to have any interest in the content for which the bandwidth is used, so long as the content is legal.

And there-in lies the rub. Carriers have been made the gatekeepers for content legality. RIAA has been going after carriers, rather than end users, in it's bogus copyright cases, because the pockets are deeper, and because they can pressure the carriers through threat of action, into becoming RIAA agents in pursuing copyright actions.

And that's not the doing of the right. It's not even the doing of the carriers, because they don't want the headaches. It's the doing of the courts, and the laws enacted relating to DCMA.

The result is...that content becomes the business of your carriers in order to limit their own liabilities.

One other thing...When Whitacre was chairman of SBC, he made a proclamation that no one may use his network for free to compete with his telecom services. This in response to a proliferation of VOIP services that simply plugged into any network connection and carried phone service via internet. Whitacre saw this as theft of service. Paying someone else for a service that he provided for profit, while using his own network to provision the connections. And to an extent, he's got a point. Another business using Whitacre's own network to steal Whitacre's customers, doing it for profit, while not sharing the revenue with Whitacre seems unfair.

I say SEEMS....at the time Whitacre didn't offer VOIP. And those users finding value in VOIP while travelling, for instance, had no alternatives from AT&T. If he wasn't offering the service, then he had no right to bitch when customers bought from someone else.

But SBC went a step further, and began to limit the bandwidth available to chat services with audio and video connections, choking down iChat, and AIM when using video, as well as a number of others, because he saw this as a theft of service.

AT&T has since curtailed much, but not all, of this. While offering video conferencing services of it's own. For cost, of course.

Net Neutrality, as presented so far, would peel back all these layers of protectionism on the part of carriers, threatening some serious service issues. Whether or not these issues will actually develop is not clear. But they are real threats to service and to operations of carriers.

A Net Neutrality bill with some practical responses to real occurrences would make more sense.

But, currently, "sense" in this matter isn't on the docket in Washington. From the Right, OR the Left.

At the Goodwill store this morning, I saw two old, old bicycles.Both of them are rusty.One of them is a Huffy, the other one is a Schwinn and it is VERY RUSTY, to say the least.I asked Edna, How much you wants for that old rusty bicycle? She said, $5.00.I told her, I will give you three dollars.She said, If it is here next week, you can have it for three.I said, For free?

I am tinkin I will put my battery back in my new auld 1983 Dodge van I boughts last year and hop back over to teh Goodwill store seven tents of a mile South of doggy's couch and wheel and deal with Edna bouts both of them that bicycles.

This mawnin, I boughts a new Sansui model number DTV 2798 27'' inch screen CRT tube tv set at the Wal Mart Gestapo store five miles West of doggy's couch.Because my ten years old RCA 27'' screen CRT tv set kicked the bucket yesteryday mawnin.I don't like those new fangled thin screen tv sets!

So do I. I don't pay $60/month for it. I don't pay much more than that for the entire phone bill, including taxes, fees, surcharges, etc., etc.

It all went to hell in 1970 after the police decided to crack down on all the illegal immigrants (Musicians from Canada and France). 1969 was a good year, Woodstock, land on the moon, freedom.

While you have the right to agree with Nurk I will tell you that is not techno babble. Food labels are required to list trans-fats and the cis-tran is just a mirror image of the molecule as far as techno babble.

I'm not addicted to it but it does help me sleep. I have some kind of insomnia that the doctors can't figure out and the pot is more effective and less harmful than the prescription drug to help me sleep. The doctor even suggested I join a medical pot club.

I just decided to come in with a bang since this group had nothing going on when I came into it.
It just amazes me that people are so hung up on this pot thing when the legal stuff does so much more harm.

I have been playing around 15 to about 21 MHz for the most part and get some signals in strange places that are not to my knowledge part of the US allocated spectrum. Maybe some countries do not abide by our F.C.C.?
I don't know if these are the pirate stations that come and go or what is the deal. I have heard the station at 18 MHz but never good enough to verify. My Hammarlund dial is accurate but not quite frequency meter accurate.

Pretty much. They got me out of the house on days I would not have gone on a long walk or bike ride and I got a lot healthier keeping up with the crowd. Keeping track of 4 or 5 kids is a bit like work so I can sympathize with the teacher that hates field trips.

Greetings, pirate listener folks!

The Crystal Ship will be going on the air this evening, commencing at approximately 2200 UTC, or 6 p.m. EDT, possibly somewhat before or after.

We will be using FULL POWER on about 5385.5 kHz AM, and expect to continue through 0000 UTC.

As always, we welcome your reception reports at this address.

Reports complete with time, date, frequency and some kind of program details will be eQSLed upon request, with our new full-data design.

"Notes" that don't represent a "reception report" but just let us know where and how we are being heard are always appreciated as well. Although we may not always answer them, they are helpful.

Double Footnote;
My barber was Carlos Santana's father. I used to get my hair cut and he

I'm on the R8A with the MTA. I'll be seeing less signal than you will. Up to S8 at 2225.

Seriously considering the Wellbrook, though. Higher gain with about the same noise figure should help, if the local noise stays low.

The way to solve this problem is not to oversell bandwidth. For instance, if they sell you a 15 Mb/s connection, then you should be able to have that 15 Mb/s available to you at all times, no matter what you are doing with it (running an FTP server, or whatever). If they don't want you to use 15 Mb/s, they shouldn't SELL it to you. They should sell you 680 Kb/s or whatever they really MEAN for you to have. Right now, we are paying for three 10 Mb/s cable drops, and between the three we're getting MAYBE a solid 1.5 Mb/s. One drop is dedicated to a 64 Kb MP3Pro audio stream, and yet it can't even always keep up with that! I've had to pay for the additional drops (from two different providers, two completely different systems) in order to have an almost constant net connections for the home computers (one drop), the audio stream (one drop) and our Vonage phone lines (one dedicated drop). Our internet drops on the line for the computers about once every 3-7 minutes for about a second and a half. It's annoying as hell.

ï¿½ Strange memories on this nervous night in Las Vegas. Five years later? Six? It seems like a lifetime, or at least a Main Era ï¿½ the kind of peak that never comes again. San Francisco in the middle sixties was a very special time and place to be a part of. Maybe it meant something. Maybe not, in the long run . . . but no explanation, no mix of words or music or memories can touch that sense of knowing that you were there and alive in that corner of time and the world. Whatever it meant. . . . History is hard to know, because of all the hired bullshit, but even without being sure of ï¿½historyï¿½ it seems entirely reasonable to think that every now and then the energy of a whole generation comes to a head in a long fine flash, for reasons that nobody really understands at the time ï¿½ and which never explain, in retrospect, what actually happened.

My central memory of that time seems to hang on one or five or maybe forty nights ï¿½ or very early mornings ï¿½ when I left the Fillmore half-crazy and, instead of going home, aimed the big 650 Lightning across the Bay Bridge at a hundred miles an hour wearing L. L. Bean shorts and a Butte sheepherder's jacket . . . booming through the Treasure Island tunnel at the lights of Oakland and Berkeley and Richmond, not quite sure which turn-off to take when I got to the other end (always stalling at the toll-gate, too twisted to find neutral while I fumbled for change) . . . but being absolutely certain that no matter which way I went I would come to a place where people were just as high and wild as I was: No doubt at all about that. . . .

There was madness in any direction, at any hour. If not across the Bay, then up the Golden Gate or down 101 to Los Altos or La Honda. . . . You could strike sparks anywhere. There was a fantastic universal sense that whatever we were doing was right, that we were winning. . . .

And that, I think, was the handleï¿½that sense of inevitable victory over the forces of Old and Evil. Not in any mean or military sense; we didnï¿½t need that. Our energy would simply prevail. There was no point in fighting ï¿½ on our side or theirs. We had all the momentum; we were riding the crest of a high and beautiful wave. . . .

So now, less than five years later, you can go up on a steep hill in Las Vegas and look West, and with the right kind of eyes you can almost see the high-water mark ï¿½ that place where the wave finally broke and rolled back."

Keys to Happiness

Happiness is the only goal on earth that all people without exception are seeking to attain. Believers and unbelievers alike seek to be happy, but each party is using different methods.

However, only believers can achieve genuine happiness. All forms of happiness attained without a firm belief in God, the Almighty, are mere illusions.

The following are tips for the attainment of happiness:

1. Know that if you do not live within the scope of today, your thoughts will be scattered, your affairs will become confused, and your anxiety will increase. These realities are explained in the following hadith:

“When you are in the evening, do not expect to see themorning, and when you are in the morning, do not expect to see the evening.” (Saheeh Al-Bukhari)

2. Forget the past and all that it contained, focus on the present.

3. Do not completely preoccupy yourself with the future and then discard the present. Be balanced in life, prepare yourself adequately for all situations.

4. Do not be shaken by criticism; instead, be firm. Be sure that in proportion to your worth, the level of people's criticism rises. Also, make good use of criticism in discovering your shortcomings and faults, and let it drive you toward self-improvement.

5. Have complete faith in God and perform good deeds; these are the ingredients that makeup a good and happy life.

6. If you desire peace, tranquility, and comfort, you can find it all in the remembrance of God.

7. You should know with certainty that everything that happens, occurs in accordance with the divine decree.

8. Do not expect gratitude from anyone.

9. Train yourself to be prepared for the worst possibility.

10. Perhaps what has happened is in your best interest, even though you may not comprehend how that can be so.

11. Everything that is decreed for the believer is the best for him.

12. Enumerate the blessings of God and be thankful for them.

13. Remember that you are better off than many others.

14. Relief comes from one hour to the next. Indeed, with each difficulty there is relief.

15. In both times of hardship and ease, one should turn to supplication and prayer, either patiently contented or thankful.

16. Calamities should strengthen your heart and reshape your outlook in a positive way.

17. Do not let trivialities be the cause of your destruction.

18. Always remember that your God is Oft-Forgiving.

19. Assume an easy-going attitude and avoid anger.

20. Life is bread, water, and shade; so do not be perturbed by a lack of any other material thing.

“And in the heaven is your providence and that which you are promised.” (Quran 51:22)

21. A daunting evil that seemingly will happen usually never occurs.

22. Look at those who have more afflictions and be grateful that you have less.

23. Bear in mind the fact that God loves those who endure trials with steadfastness, so seek to be one of them.

24. Constantly repeat those supplications that the Prophet (may God praise him) taught us to say during times of hardship.

25. Work hard at something that is productive, and cast off idleness.

26. Do not spread rumors and do not listen to them. If you hear a rumor inadvertently, do not believe it.

27. Know that your malice and your striving to seek revenge are much more harmful to your health than they are to your antagonist.

28. The hardships that befall you atone for your sins, if you endure with patience.

It is. And a lot of it has to do with the configuration of the network. You're not on a private radius. So you're sharing bandwidth.
Cost saving measure for the carrier. Cable is a lot worse than DSL. Some cable installations have near an entire neighborhood on a single radius.
Irritating isn't enough of a word for it. But that's how they keep end user costs manageable. The hard truth is, your 3 cable drops are on the same radius. You might as well be on a single drop.

DSL or Cable is NOT a guaranteed bandwidth.

Well, two of them are. The third is a completely different provider and infrastructure. That company has 100 Mb/s services available, but unfortunately only to large apartment buildings.. wish I could glom onto one

Mine's $34 a month for 2 GB of bandwidth, and as yet I've not used even 25% of that, even with streaming audio. Since it's cell based, it works anywhere in the country with very few drops, and those only when we're in a moving vehicle at 130 KpH. It's a lot more reliable than our hardwire internet connections..

Qualsh has posted a nice little review on the Yaesu FT-817.

Excerpt:
Great for beginning ham operators as well as those looking to get more advanced. The things I am most satisfied with about this radio, are quality of the engineering, the power abilities, versatility, and just overall a great radio. The drawbacks are the interface, pretty lousy stock antenna and the limited size of the controls...

I just won this Grundig radio from Deutsche Welle in Germany. It did not come with an adapter and I would like to purchase one. Problem is the Yacht Boy 80 is not sold in America. The radio calls for a 6V 200mA (+)tip adapter. Before I buy anything I want to make sure it's the right one. I fried a perfectly good DX-440 once by using the wrong adapter and I do not wish this to happen again. Question is, can I just go buy a 6V 200mA (+)tip adapter from Radio Shack or does this need to be researched more?

Technically the Grundig Yacht Boy 80 is sold in the US as the Sangean PT-80 ProTravel, but it uses a 6V 200mA (-)tip adapter. With all the research I've done I haven't been able to come up with a source for purchasing the adapter that's made specifically for the Yacht Boy 80. Suggestions anyone?

Buying an aftermarket AC adaptor should not be any problem. Two things you want to make sure of:

1) Buy an adaptor with at least 50% more current capability than is called for, for safety purposes (i.e. at least a 300 mA 6 volt adaptor).

2) Make sure you buy a decent, regulated analog adaptor. You do not want a switch mode supply for a radio.

BION,

Try a RadioShack Store {The Shack}
http://www.radioshack.com/

Enercell 6V @ 300mA AC-to-DC Adapter
http://www.radioshack.com/product/index.jsp?productId=3802150

plus the right "Adapt-A-Plug" {Adaptaplug} to fit your Grundig Yacht Bot 80 Radio http://www.radioshack.com/search/index.jsp?kwCatId=&kw=adaptaplug&origkw=Adaptaplug&sr=1 hope this helps - iane ~ RHF

FWIW : Grundig Yacht Boy 80Radio {Europe} is the Sangean PT-80 ProTravel Radio {USA} http://www.universal-radio.com/CATALOG/portable/1080.html
http://www.grundig.co.uk/productdetails.aspx?pid=GUYB80&language=en-GB
IMHO : The Sangean PT-80 Radio's USA
(110 VAC to 6 VDC) Adapter should work
A-OK as a replacement for the Grundig YB-80
Radio's EU (220 VAC to 6 VDC) Adapter.

Yes, here's a suggestion:

Make very, VERY sure of the polarity. It sounds a little odd that the identical radio -- with just a different name plate glued to it -- would have the opposite polarity.

Use a meter (voltage meter) to check the polarity of the radio jack with the batteries inside of the radio.Use the same meter to check the polarity of the plug on the adapter, the part that plugs into the radio jack.

Free Over-the-Air Radio is 24/7 be it Analog or [HD] Digital and NFL Team Branded HD-2 Radio broadcasts sell, Sell. SELL ! the the NFL Team Fans {Fanatics} - go radio ~ RHF
NFL Team Branded HD-2 is a 24/7 InfoMercial for every NFL Team in it's 'Local' Market Media Area - b r i l l i a n t ! ~ RHF

All {Your Team's Name Here} Football All the Time
* That's 24/7 Go {Team Name} Yeah !

Can the NHL and MLB be far behind . . . with their own Team Branded HD-2 Radio Stations ?
As i have said before FM HD-2 Radio Broadcasts are the only clear business reason for HD Radio because it takes the same local FM Radio
'Franchise' {Radio License} and creates a Second Income Stream from it at a low cost multiple. ¢ ¢ ¢ > > > $ $ $ ~ RHF

Gee was it the twinkle in his eye like he just dropped his pants for a hooker, after being asked if he would pursue obtaining prohibited weapons?

Gee, was it the CIA reports about women in slavery?

Gee, was it the fact we had to ground the Shah's military airplanes by denying them parts?

Gee, was it watching the peaceful protest college students getting thrown off 30 ft walls?

Gee, was the CIA reports concerning importing teenage hookers to work as sex slaves from Afghanistan?

Gee, was it the lack of highly skilled work force to build their own petro refineries due to frequent export of terrorist fighters that blow themselves up?

Gee, was it brain damage from beating your head against the desk in school against the Koran?

Gee is the lack of a retraction that they want to wipe Israel off the map?

Gee, was it the export of explosives that killed and maimed American soldiers?

Well, goooooollllllleeeeeeeee, just where is this peaceful and close friendship taking us?

Gee, was it the hand shake with Chavez?

Hey, I'm all for peace, but you gotta meet us half way. We don't put guns to the heads of people and tell them to vote for Barack Obama?

America has enough problems, and if they want to act like a secretive militant Islamic regime, and American soldiers are being maimed, and rockets are pouring into Israel, is there really a debate that sanctions will work if you really want something to happen?

I got no problem with Islam, just keep the bullets out of it?

What do you expect if there are no diplomatic relations for over thirty years, trust?

If I was Iran, I would retract the statements regarding the destruction of Israel, I would state they have a right to exist, that the world has the patience to settle the border disputes in the name of peace, that Islam is not meant to be spread with violence, and that we have opened up a new tourism industry with lots of good stuff scheduled, and not run around puzzle palaces like Saddam did?

Hey Hillary, you can jump in now, the water is great!

You blew a chance at getting laid on the spot. Women were using men's rules for getting some. I had one girl just about drag me up to her apartment in L.A. in 1969 and it was a one bed, 3 room mates deal.
We did the deed on the bed as her room mates toked.
1969 was a phenomenal year and I don't see any repeats coming.
It will just have to remain a great memory.
Around the same time, next to the same apartment, I was standing with my hands clasped in the back, about butt height when I felt something warm in my hands. A girl had just come up from behind and made herself comfortable with her girl parts snuggled into my hands.
Again with the upstairs routine but a different room.
I never even got her name, but she was happy, I was happy and stunned.

That pretty well describes it, except I had a 1968 Rambler so I could carry a porta-party and it got 22 MPG at 120 MPH all the way down to Tijuana. I had my 'Cougar' with me. It was kind of nice being her sex toy since I never had to worry about getting laid. She was a major horn dog and almost made me at 20 look 'not horny enough'.

I pay one third of that. In any event, I have it for other reasons.
Streaming audio is just a side benefit, so for me (and many others) it is effectively free. It sounds better. There is a vastly better selection of programming. Why would I care about HD?

Where is the "income" if there are no spots? What advertiser would waste a dime on the pathetically low penetration of all HD-2 combined?

Convenience.

HD is just another option/choice.

Choices are a good thing.

Big big difference between selling cable TV and internet services but commicast blocks competitors from entering into their areas that CAN provide bandwidth to download videos. If they can't shit, they should get off the pot!

In our city, we only have one HS carrier, commicast.

This is not promoting capitalism! It's communistic. Specially when they block even small downloads.

FAUX is a free basic channel while MSNBC has to be purchased. CNN is often blocked by local news coverage from distant cities. And, with little deregulation, all the common carriers are being consolidated into one company, much like AT&T before the breakup. AT&T used every means to block competition and then went out of their way to slow down and OWN all communication technology.

From yer article:

"f the congressional plan passes, 28% of voters say the quality of health care will get better, and 48% say it will get worse. In August, the numbers were 23% better and 50% worse.

Forty-seven percent (47%) say passage of the plan will make the cost of health care go up while 24% say it will make costs go down. In August, 52% thought the plan would lead to higher costs, and just 17% thought it would achieve the stated goal of lowering costs.

Fifty-two percent (52%) now say passage of health care reform is likely while 38% say it is not. Those figures include 15% who say passage is Very Likely and 11% who say it is Not at All Likely. "

Note that the trend is favoring "ObamaCare". The more people learn about what's involved, the more comfortable they get. But please, by all means keep flailing.

Actually, not today. A lot of cable TV is IPTV, these days. But even those which aren't, are digital. Comcast, U-Verse, RCN. It all comes in as a digital stream on the same cable, so the same network bandwidth limitations apply. Such carriers will limit user activity bandwidth so they can protect the TV stream preferentially, Comcast being the worst. Even terminating service to customers who hit the bandwidth cap. Download a couple of HD movies, watch some TV shows in HD on-line and you can hit that cap before you realize it.

AT&T, on the other hand doesn't sell or imply guarantees of huge download numbers, only that there is the potential, in bursts, for huge download speeds, heavily qualified pursuant to distance from the CO, network traffic, or other noise. Uploads are capped at 768k, which is absurd, today. What AT&T does do that Comcast does not, is monitor all traffic for content and connection, and block potential activities that could be considered competition.

Which is also absurd.

Fred Nurk, as usual, hasn't a clue. Nice bit of editing on Baka's post however. Here's what Baka originally wrote and what he was responding to without the malicious editing. Can't see anything in that with a resemblance to the actions of Roman Polanski. What secrets do you have hidden away that would explain your obsession with young girls Nurk??

I Love that show!) I walked into a store and I started looking at a soft back book of black and white photos of naked women, I was only twenty three years old, still young and innocent. You blew a chance at getting laid on the spot. Women were using men's rules for getting some. I had one girl just about drag me up to her apartment in L.A. in 1969 and it was a one bed, 3 room mates deal.
We did the deed on the bed as her room mates toked.
1969 was a phenomenal year and I don't see any repeats coming.
It will just have to remain a great memory.
Around the same time, next to the same apartment, I was standing with my hands clasped in the back, about butt height when I felt something warm in my hands. A girl had just come up from behind and made herself comfortable with her girl parts snuggled into my hands.
Again with the upstairs routine but a different room.
I never even got her name, but she was happy, I was happy and stunned.

This morning, at around 11:54 AM, three dark grey piston engine single propellar up front Airplanes with huge letters on the sides of the Airplanes, letters so huge, they cover most of the sides of the Airplanes.My eyes couldn't make out what the letters (and numbers, if any) say.The Airplanes weren't all that high up in the sky, they were flying to the West.
What Airplanes are they?

I am more up-to date than you could imagine.

There has been no widespread interference complaints from the public...and virtually all stations are protected within their contours.

Reminds me of the engineers who didn't want to turn on the stereo pilot...because they were afraid to give up any coverage area.

That much is obvious!
My 'Cougar' was about 38 and the horniest woman I have ever known.
I lived with her and her 18 year old daughter for about 6 months.
They supported me in fine style. Cougar worked nights as a bar maid and daughter worked days in a head shop on Sunset Strip during the days. The 18 year old was my target but I wound up double-dipping, legally.
Be jealous Nurk, be very jealous.
1969, for me, was just about an all time peak year.
Viet Nam? Draft? College?
Nope. Took the year off to get laid, laid, and laid some more.

Poor Nurk must be a frustrated Virgin.

She grabbed my ass and I found out that she, the 18 year old has been having sex with boys since she was 11. Does she get to go to jail for adult molesting? Now that she is 18 and has been with over a dozen boys and probably has all kinds of STD's I want nothing to do with her.

As I said, oh ye of little comprehension, I did nothing illegal. There were tons of girls/women over 18 looking for one night stands so I never had to chase tail. I was 20 and most of the girls were 19 to 25.

Nurk,

Probably a lot. Roman Polanski drugged his 13 year old in his mansion and I'm betting she liked it better than a mattress in an alley like some girls lose it. Nurk isn't really worth responding to but he does make some wild accusations. Maybe "The 40 year old Virgin" was modeled on him.

My little couch buddy doggy is a Blue Heeler Australian Cattle Dog.
www.cattledog.com
www.acdca.org

American Kennel Club says those dogs are highly intelligent.Maybe I can rig up a way for my doggy to use my crapper, without a pan or a bowl.I can drill a hole in the end of the flush lever and screw a hinge on to the floor with something she can step on and a piece of wire or a little chain and teach doggy to use my crapper if I croak or fall and can't get up.

Blueberry, flush the crapper!

The broadcasters being interfered with don't consider such interference a "minor technical issue". Most broadcasters have nothing to do with "HD Radio", and they're not just about to pay someone else's "cost of doing business".

Can you state a broadcaster that is being interfered with in their protected contours?

Again, if this is so prevailent, why isn't there a pile of listeners complaints at the FCC?

Well I received my sony AN-LP1 Antenna, and tried it with my G5 tonight. It made Radio Havanah go from noisy to very clear with little static.

However, this and other stations wax and wane in strength, even though it seems the radio is picking up the station well. Does this have a name? Anything I can do about it?

Thanks. Just being able to get additional news stations make this worthwhile.

Stereo destroys FM coverage. Those engineers were right.

People don't complain as much as they just find other things to listen to. Digital sidebands increase analog channel noise. That is a fact.
Now if they were to quit trying to do stereo in the analog channel, that might work.

Protected Contours need to be rethought. Lots of people live in suburbs, out of any protected contours. Are you saying they have no

It's called selective fading. You must replace the distant carrier with a stable local one. You can use an SSB receiver precisely tuned, or find one with Synchronous Detection. Like I said, a real radio.

Kaiser Health Tracking Polliï¿½September 2009

The September Kaiser Health Tracking Poll finds that public support for health reform ended its summer slide, reversed course and moved modestly upwards in September. The survey also finds initial majority support for taxing expensive health plans and imposing fees on insurers to pay for reform.

Fifty-seven percent of Americans now believe that tackling health care reform is more important than everï¿½up from 53 percent in August. The proportion of Americans who think their families would be better off if health reform passes is up six percentage points (42% versus 36% in August), and the percentage who think that the country would be better off is up eight points (to 53% from 45% in August).

Substantial majorities of Americans continue to say they back individual reform components designed to expand coverage, including an individual mandate (68%), an employer mandate (67%) and an expansion of state programs such as Medicaid and the Childrenï¿½s Health Insurance Program (82%).

When it comes to paying for reform, two ideas now under discussion among policymakers garner initial majority support. Fifty-seven percent of the public say they would support ï¿½having health insurance companies pay a fee based on how much business they haveï¿½ and 59 percent would support ï¿½having health insurance companies pay a tax for offering very expensive policies.ï¿½ In both cases, Republicans are evenly divided while Democrats and political independents tilt in favor.

The September poll, the sixth in a series designed and analyzed by the Foundationï¿½s public opinion survey research team, examines votersï¿½ specific health care issue interests and experiences and perceptions about health care reform.

Stereo multiplexing in and of itself does no damage to the coverage area.
Listening on a monaural receiver or in mono mode with a stereo receiver gives the same coverage as a monaural transmitter would.

If God himself came down from heaven and made Obama a saint, you would -still- find something to bitch about.

Why don't you just be done with it and finally admit you are a racist and that you won't give Obama an ounce of credit, no matter what he does or what awards he receives.

P.S.

To answer your foolish questions above, no, the Nobel award was not given to him because of the unwinnable two bags of $hit (Iraq, Afghanistan wars) that he -inherited- from that simpleton W and his gang of thieves.

It IS because:

The Norwegian Nobel Committee was trying "to promote what he stands for and the positive processes that have started now." It lauded the change in global mood wrought by Obama's calls for peace and cooperation, and praised his pledges to reduce the world stock of nuclear arms, ease American conflicts with Muslim nations...

If this "sainthood" was based on the same performance as was this Nobel Prize, of course.

Now, now, don't get yer panties all in a knot, Hyman..."sainthood" was just an -example-, not that he is specifically a saint (or should be).

The point was, that no matter what Obama does, no matter what awards he wins, the closet racists will STILL find fault.

Most Americans (closet racists excepted) believe that a person winning the Nobel Prize is a high honor. Your mileage may vary.

So you're another whose own racism has so throughly permeated his being that the only reason you can possibly imagine for someone to be opposed to Obama's policies is that he's a racist like you?

There can be no other reason for opposition?

None at all?

don't forget, old ron-ray-gun talked about reducing nukes; just talked.

<snip cross-post>

Gotta put my 2 cents in on this one. you can bet your butt old dope-head Rush, and murder suspect Beck are going crazy as we type.

and to try to get this on topic, i heard this on the radio this morn.

Well, that settles it then. If a world renowned authority like Cuhu says it's worthless, then it must be so.

Well no; they're ridiculing the Nobel Committee for giving the prize, which is supposed to awarded "to those who, during the preceding year, shall have conferred the greatest benefit to mankind", to someone who was nominated after having been in office for two weeks or less.

The Nobel Peace Prize for 2009 was supposed to be awarded for deeds performed in 2008, although the nominating period didn't end until February 1, 2009.

1592. Nobel Peace Prize confirms Obama is the new Jimmy Carter

Newsgroup: rec.radio.shortwave
Date: 2009-10-09 19:05:46 UTC
From: Mark <Mark@chicken.poop>
Message-ID: <35347597609587.52365562566@chicken.poop>
Source record: 187653

The Nobel Peace Price has long been viewed with disdain, but now all doubt has been removed. Awarding a prize to someone who hasn't even done anything yet, while bypassing many worthy candidates, such as Sima Simar, women's rights activist in Afghanistan, is disgusting: "With dogged persistence and at great personal risk, she kept her schools and clinics open in Afghanistan even during the most repressive days of the Taliban regime, whose laws prohibited the education of girls past the age of eight. When the Taliban fell, Samar returned to Kabul and accepted the post of Minister for Women's Affairs."

Truly, the Nobel Peace Prize Committee has turned their "prize" and themselves into a laughing stock. If Obama had true empathy for the downtrodden, he'd refuse to accept it.

Completely phony argument and not worth my time.

Contours? Oh, you mean the small, community stations that are being plastered in their communities of license by large metro stations from way out of the area have no right to expect protection?

It's a flawed system that causes harm and provides no benefit. Not worth any more discussion.

Analog is still the bread and butter of all stations. Crippling it for the sake of promoting iBiquity's financial health is done at every

? So 'coverage' is more important then the Content

NOT FM !

FM Radio Music "Content" and the Quality Features {Stereo} of the Sound coming out of the FM Radio ?

That is the 'what' that sets FM Radio apart and above AM {Mono} Radio.

HD-2 Second Channel {Content} via FM HD-Radio has the 'potential' to Double the Number of FM Radio Channels {Content} for most local Radio Listeners.

Just getting elected was quite an achievement and it has lowered tensions among people we need to help us.

Victory follows defining the objective of hostilities. A moving target invalidates the process. Declare "peace with honor" and get the fuck out.

October 9th 2009
Los Angeles Section

Greetings Fellow Amateur Radio Operators,

On October 1st I took the office of Section Manager, with the task of managing the various ARRL programs, serving not only the Los Angeles ARRL membership, but the entire Los Angeles County amateur radio community. There are many objectives that we are working on and that we are looking forward to accomplishing this year. Your input and perspectives are very important to me, and continue to be invaluable in assisting and steering our direction as an organization.

With significant effort, Jennifer O'Connell, KI6OIL@gmail.com has posted our first Los Angeles Section Newsletter. Jennifer is currently working on the November issue. She is encouraging the ARRL membership and ARRL Affiliated Clubs to submit articles. The section newsletter is continuing to evolve, with its primary aim being to highlight ARES, NTS, OO, Affiliated Clubs and other local ARRL programs.

You can enjoy your first newsletter copy by going to WWW.LAX-ARRL.org.

Stay tuned for upcoming news about our programs, our volunteers, and our appointees.

Thank you for your continued support. I look forward to an exciting year to come.

David Greenhut, N6HD

Those are great questions. We need Russia to help us with Iran. We need Pakistan to help catch the Al Qaedas. Etc.

A great portion of foreign aid is used to prop-up dictators and wins us

Old Pith Helmet I bought at the Goodwill store a bunch of years ago, I think it is a remnant from the Boer War.It was soooooo frayyyyyed and also soooooo raggity.I used some Titebond interior/exterior waterproof glue on it.I mopped the glue all over the top, the glue turned it a shiney darker color.When that glue dries real good, I am going to do the bottom.I likes to wear it when it is raining hard outside.It makes a good rain Helmet.It also makes me look Cute too.

Are we studying physics...or how to have a healthy prosperous industry.

I would dare to say, that those that held onto mono broadcasting on FM...are not running prosperous stations now.

Hello...

Well, my AN-LP1 arrived from Japan, and I hooked it up to the G5 and hung the antenna in the window for a first listen to short wave. I clearly makes a big difference, Radio Havana was noisy, but became crystal clear when I switched the antenna on. Clearly at different times of the day, there are more or less stations detected.

I enjoyed listening to the news from some other country. This is why I am trying short wave. However, even Radio Havana, which seemed to be coming in pretty well, would wax and wave in loudness and reception clarity. I can live with this, but it would be much more desirable for this not to happen. Are there countermeasures one can take, technology one can buy, etc.?

I have not tried SSB on the G5 but will tonight (I saw there is a section in the G5 manual on it, haven't got there yet). Will this help?

If I had the Sony SW7600GR, which I am probably going to get just for comparison, would the synchronous detection solve this problem?

Thanks.....

Jim

PS .. I tried to post this earlier, thought I did. Pardon me if this shows up twice...

Thanks for the responses. Well, I am wondering then if I should invest

Dang Dave you are right : Physics is Physics :
People have Two Ears and generally prefer FM
"Stereo" Radio cause it sounds B E T T E R .

FM Stereo Radio
FM Stereo Headphone Radio {Walkman}
Stereo Cassette Player
Stereo CD Player
Stereo iPod Player
Yeah 'Stereo' Matches Up with Human Physics.

A User-Friendly Guide To "Tort Reform" http://www.whatistortreform.com/

About "Tort Reform"
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Tort_reform

-wrt- Tort Reform coupled to Nationalized Health Care
* Arbitration by the Government Tribunal
* Limit Pain and Suffering Payments
* Disability Income Insurance by the Government
* Free Health Care by the Government for the Injured
NO LAWYERS .
WHY ? Compensate the Injured Patients : Don't Enrich the Lawyers
Close One Law School in each State and 'transform' it into a Free Public Health Service Medical School for Nationalized Health Care Public Clinic [GP] Doctors.

bwaHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHA!

Now the Liberal Fascists are labeling Libertarians as "Right Wing".

bwaHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHA!

Ja, if you are not a leftist communist "revolutionary" then you are a Rightist.
When you are so far down everything looks like up to you.

woahAHAHAHAHAHAHAHA!

My God, teach your children factual history before the Communists erase every piece of evidence and twist every ounce of logic.

LMFAO!

WOW (wiping tears of laughter from eyes)

hina's dissidents are voicing unease about President Barack Obama's Nobel Peace Prize, saying that the award could have been effective in promoting human rights in their country.

The Dalai Lama, who won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1989 despite strong Chinese protests, told Obama that "the founding fathers of the United States have made this country the greatest democracy and a champion of freedom and liberty.

"It is, therefore, important for today's American leaders to adopt principled leadership based on these high ideals," he said.

"Such an approach will not only enhance the reputation of the United States, but also contribute tremendously to reducing tension in the world."

When I was working in East Weasel Penis, Iowa, and a storm warning would post, we were instructed to kill the FM stereo pilot specifically to improve fringe listening, which depended on our FM.

What the GM didn't figure on was 1) that most fringe listening was largely mono, anyway, due to the function of the automatic blend circuit in most receivers in the field, and 2) the automatic mute function built into many receivers which would kick in in the absence of the stereo pilot.

When he had installed his brand new Radio Shack receiver, and it had gone dead silent during the first storm warning, he about broke records for blood pressure.

He went so far as to produce an on-air editorial suggesting listeners sue their receiver manufacturers for producing receivers that were 'wired wrong.'

The immediate workaround was to leave the stereo pilot on during storm warnings.

Affiliate with stupid christains with anti-abortion even though the GOP over many years has passed many opportunities to have it receded. Bush even called the anti-abortionist, "stupid". Yow! Imagine if Obama did that!

Spending BILLIONS of $$$$ on ad campaigns to demoralize the country. Very patriotic! Like little children, they destroy the toys when their daddy says they have to share.

Yes. It will all but eliminate selective fading distortion and replace it with a gentle sweeping flange. WARNING: You need to use a sync detector with BOTH sidebands to listen to an IBOC MW station. Not all sync detectors are capable of this. You can't listen to an IBOC station

2400 UTC on 5900

Great signal here to The Nati'.

Not used to hearing them on this freq.
Propogation seems fairly good on most of the bands today.

Upon further examination, I have further info.

First, apologies to Rob (not Bob) Sherwood.

Second, this receiver cannot be sold in the USA has it doesn't have cellular blocking. It's a spook radio. Very pricey I suspect. A nice RX-320 would be more fun I'll bet.

Of the public schools in Illinois, Chicago has the highest dollar-per-pupil spent, and the lowest test scores, the lowest graduation, and the highest dropout rates, in the state.

While Blue Mound, Illinois, has the highest test scores, the highest graduation and the lowest dropout rates in the state. While spending less than half, per pupil, than Chicago.

The problem with the schools, as the problem with 'No Child Left Behind,' is not money.

Bill Clinton 'balanced the budget,' on paper only, with a 10 year projection by including the Social Security 'trust fund' in the General Revenue fund.

There was no surplus. There's not been a surplus. We were no more 'in the black,' than we were prepared for 9/11.

What was handed Bush in 2000 was a country in debt, with a demoralized military and a defense system riddled with roadblocks, and institutionalized ignorances just as was experienced by Roosevelt in 1940. The difference was that Roosevelt created his problems. Bush's were inherited.

In the last 6 months, the national debt has skyrocketed, spending is flat out of countrol, and government intrusion in the private sector is at a all time high.

All of which were done by policies of this President, after the election.

None of which has created a single job, revitalized a single industry, or enhanced a single matter of security. Most of which have resulted in enormous debt held by our enemies, and a President that was bitch slapped on the world stage a week ago.

Then he's handed a Nobel Prize for his accomplishments voted him after only 11 days in office.

And Fox News is the problem?

Maybe you're right. Clearly YOUR school could have spent a few more dollars.

How's that Hope and Change working for you?

Yea, they come in good here on 5900, but Voice of Russia always comes in good when they are targeting NA. I guess with Radio Bulgaria cutting back English transmissions on 5900, the Russians took advantage on getting a transmission on 49 meters in English.

I chose staying here in the USA. I chose to support our country.

But you on the other hand seem to not like it here. In fact, destroying it here seems utmost on your list. Perhaps we can arrange something for you? You can find great camaraderie and shared interest of destroying the USA pretty much anywhere in the mid-east. You can help Ru$h find an new castle

Isn't AMPS Cellular down everywhere in the USA now? Why would this still be a prohibition?

1679. New Fall / Winter Schedules (b09 ?)

Newsgroup: rec.radio.shortwave
Date: 2009-10-11 14:16:53 UTC
From: Robert11 <rgsros@xnotme.invalid>
Message-ID: <haspch$69u$1@news.eternal-september.org>
Source record: 187840

Hello,

What is the "official" changeover date for the new Fall / Winter schedules ?

I guess they're called b09; correct ?

Thanks,
Bob

The digital stuff is in both sidebands and 180 degrees out of phase with itself. A simple detector sums to zero; a selectable sideband detector hears the digital crap along with the analog.

Hi Wim,

I've been reading the linnks kindly provided in this thread. Am I correct that a wire antenna can actually damage my radio? Does using an inductive coil around the whip completely eliminate this possibility?

I'd like to take advantage of the antenna out on the G5. Is there not safe way?

Also, if I connect the shield braid of a coax to the ground without intervening run of wire, then there will need to be a run of wire from the center coax lead to the radio. Is this OK?

Thanks all.

OK, sorry, I see I was confusing the antenna and radio sides of the coax. The radio side: center of coax to center of mini, shield brain to surround of mini. Antenna side: braid to ground post, center to antenna wire. So I can have the run between outside ground post and radio using coax.

But can I damage G5 with an external wire? If so I'll use the whip inductor. Please advise....

Jim

Alrightttttttt!,,, Too bad I quit the booze!

I used to subscribe to Yahoo Internet Life snail mail magazines, untill they went belly up.I still have those old magazines here.

Look at using a Shortwave Longwire Antenna Balun Transformer [LMZ-50] between your Antenna Wire and Coax Cable
http://cgi.ebay.com/_W0QQitemZ150367369326
+ Plus a Ground Wire to your Radio /Coax Shield

-or- End-Fed Antenna Balun for Shortwave Longwire {SWL} [LWF-50] between your Antenna Wire and Coax Cable
http://cgi.ebay.com/_W0QQitemZ150379475157
-with- a Ground Wire connected directly to the Balun

Yeah the Plug Tip is the Center Wire of the Coax and the Plug Sleeve is the Shield Wire of the Coax

Anyone outside the US know anything about the RX-400? Funny that a rig manufactured inside the US can't be sold there...

I'd probably also settle for the RX-340, if I even have the money

The last time I was actually in the states (2003) they still had unscrambled analog cell service. It was still widely used (especially by TracFone), and cost a mint to use. Looks like it was finally discontinued in 2008, according to Wiki.

What's nice about the forthcoming Democratic win in 2010 and 2012 is that the only thing the GOP and it's followers can stand behind is their ability to do nothing, except destroy and kill more people. And, the incompetence of the followers to THINK nothing but recite and cut-n-paste racist obama jokes.

Does anyone know if there are any RTTY news services still broadcasting on the SW bands? Unencoded and readable of course. I'm in the process of pulling my old equipment

I've never seen an HD radio that wasn't on a radio executive's desk (or at my house). Hobbyists and people in the "biz" are the only one's interested.

Hundreds of your favorite broadcasters got their starts running Sunday morning public service on local radio stations. I got 50 cents an hour in 1963.

The balun drives co-ax cable. Terminate the random wire away from the electrical noise near the receiver by using co-ax and the balun.

Huessin O'dumma invited the Cop and the Professor over to the White House to have a few "brewskies" in the Rose Garden and discuss their differences...of course we all know O'dumma's got egg on his beard for calling the cop "stupid"...

The ONLY way I would have excepted and invite is if Huessin would have had Michelle dress up in short shorts and a low cut top and let her sling cocktails and give lap dances...Yep, I'd probably still be camped out there if that were the case...:-)

- The balun drives co-ax cable.

First the Balun effectively 'couples' the Antenna Wire to the Coax Cable {Impedance Matching}.
[Balun = RF Matching Transformer]

Note the Coax Cable [50 Ohms] is already 'Impedance Matched' to the Radio/Receivers 50 Ohm [LO-Z] Antenna Input.

- Terminate the random wire away from the
- electrical noise near the receiver by using
- co-ax and the balun.

Generally a Balun works best along with a good earthen Ground {connection}.

Anyone who lived through the McCarthy years knows the value of an inflammatory label. It's easy, destructive, and simply presumed to be true on its face. Meaning there's no need to present evidence, nor to defend the accusation. Similarly, it's difficult, if not impossible to defend against. And therein lies its destructive power.

Calling someone a 'racist', today, is no different that calling someone a 'communist' in 1952.

There are analogs in the business community. If an employer wants to do someone damage for having left the company, and can't come up with anything else, they call the employee "thief." Or "troublemaker."

Democrats laid the foundation for this before Obiteme landed the nomination. Anyone who resisted his nomination, opposed his policies, were 'racists' by definition.

Jesse 'Thug' Jackson even went so far as to suggest a white person not voting for Obiteme was a racist.

Jimmy Carter recently asserted that there can't be opposition to this pompous jackass without racism.

No discussion of policy. No debate in the arena of ideas. Just a destructive label.

Sadly, without racisim, these lazy and small minds can't present any valid arguments as to why this idiot's policies are so actively angrily resisted. And therein lies the depth of understanding of who they really are. If 'racism' is the first place someone goes when meeting resistance, then the racism lies first and foremost with the accuser.

There are several types of fading. HF being what it is, not line-of-site limited and often using sky wave as well as ground wave propagation, there are going to be several fading modes. The "selective fading" that has been described in other responses can be minimized by selection of the proper equipment, but no one antenna and radio can really negate it, a true diversity reception technique generally requires two antennas and two detectors, the two detectors can be built into one piece of hardware or may be totally separate pieces but the two antennas must be physically separate

Other types of fading include Faraday Rotation resulting in changes of polarity in the incoming RF wave. Portables, with their short receive antennas, actually have a slight theoretical advantage over stations using a large antenna in this realm. Unfortunately, the reduced capture area and efficiency of the small whip more than negates the advantage in actual use.

In short, no radio will eliminate fading in the SW spectrum. However, the selection of a radio with the right features and a good antenna can greatly reduce the effects.

Also, when selecting a radio look for true LSB and USB modes, models that feature "SSB" often just use a variable BFO to allow SSB reception (typically a single selection that says simply SSB instead of calling out LSB and USB). This can make determining the exact frequency and mode of a SSB signal problematic, particularly to the newer user. The tuned frequency for an SW broadcast station is less of an issue, they typically fall on a 5 or 10 kHz spacing, so the display being 1 or 2 kHz off (possible to do with most variable BFO schemes) does not matter all that much, the signal will most often still be in the passband and you can peak the signal as needed. But clandestine BC transmissions, utilities, military, numbers stations, etc, tend to be less channelized and lower power, knowing the real tuned frequency is more important here.

One thing to consider, when you are talking about spending $400 or more on a portable you are now getting into the cost realm of potentially better radios. Desktops in the form of the Icom R75 are only a little over this mark, possibly at it if you choose lightly used. Radios like the Ten-Tec RX-320D and the RFSpace SDR-IQ are right there (but both require a computer to work). Unless you just want a portable (and there is nothing wrong with that) you might consider other options.

Right now, if you do not mind having to have it connected to a computer, the RFSpace SDR-IQ (at $500) is probably the best bang-for-the-buck you can get for under $750, maybe even push that up to $1000. Like everything else, TANSTAAFL, it has its limitations, in this case imaging issues when around high power stations, particularly above 15 MHz. As I have no AM BC stations within many miles of me I have not seen the issue, but I have talked with users that have. Some have had to install bandstop or high pass filters to address the issue. Still, most portables have similar issues.

C!

I wouldn't go anywhere near District of Crimminals,,, even if George Washington was still the prez!

From doggy's couch to District of Crimminals it is about 982 miles. (as the Crow flys) Add five more miles because doggy's couch is five miles West from the center of down town (that married Irish woman wayyyyyy over yonder across the big pond calls it, up the town) Jackson.About 987 miles.IT (District of Crimminals ought to be on the other side of Mars!

I highly disagree.
Ru$h, the voice piece of the GOP started the race issue (ever so carefully worded) back during the elections. Corporate america promotes it though $$billion$$ dollar back door, multi-front advert campaigns. Inciting the GOP null-minded fruit basket to voice the racism is obviously in the campaign's design goal.

Carter simply called it what it is without the GOP bull$$hit wrapper. Who else had the balls to do that! Would never have been a republican't!

If for a simple moment one where to believe the GOP was working in YOUR best interest, why would the insurance industry, the ones with the most to loose, be spending enormous amounts of money in GOP "campaign" donations to defeat it? Specially when they create the extra funding by denying some smuck's hospital claim.

If the GOP wins, all of us including you, will have to bow down to corporate monopolistic control shaded under "captialist" government protection. If you think a Dem win on healthcare would create death panels, you have absolutely no clue how the current industry works. Private data? HA! can you say "Insurance Black List"?

Google that phrase with your name :)

OK, working this way avoids that the cable picks up interference from domestic equipment.

> But can I damage G5 with an external wire? If so I'll use the whip > inductor. Please advise....

Yes, you can, as most of these portable recievers do not have strong input protection, nearby strikes can damage the input. Don't make the wire longer then necessary and remove the mini plug from the radio in case of natural photo flash. You might add the inductor or resistor to lower the risk on damage because of built-up of static electricity.

Using a special transformer as mentioned in other postings gives you more signal output in case of short wires. So you can have a shorter wire (for example when you have limited space). I do not share the opinion that these transformers reduce interference significantly.

When you live in a residential area, you probably don't need this as noise will be dominant with moderate wire lengths. More signal does not always mean better reception as noise will raise also.

There are occasional weekend transmissions from former maritime HF stations on the West Coast. You could go to

I'm currently working on a way to view rig on my site as a list of thumbnails, much like the Windows Explorer allows you to do. I've put a first preliminary impression on-line:

http://rigreference.com/files/thumbs-view-impression.png

I'd love to hear what you think of it.

Please remember its an impression, so really nothing works at the moment.

Of course the White House will never talk about how the far left-wing drive-by media, CBS, MSNBC, NBC, ABC, and CNN all campaigned to get Hussein elected by telling lies about the opposition, and will never have a disparaging word to say about their messiah. Poor Hussein, he cannot stand any criticism of himself or his policies without whinning about it. Criticize Hussein or his policies and you are labeled a Nazi, racist, a right-wing nut.

The simple-minded left nutheads forget all the vial things they said about Bush, but that's OK for them to do it.

Can we say major hypocrisy from the left? Yep, we sure can.

Simple-minded dummycrats (the party that birthed the KKK) and liberals...morons electing morons.

Yea right, everybody but FAUX and Limpballs is wrong
Nothing like the hypocritical do-nothing party of NO thinkiing!

Don't think for a minute your not getting off free. Those insurance companies are going to raise your rates to cover the $billion$$ ad campaign THEY are launching.

How dare mainstream news endorse a capable candidate over a pair of corporate queens like Mr. McGoo and the Paliban.

That doesn't mean there's no interference. It's amazing how the proponents of HD Radio assume that receivers magically quit receiving a signal once they leave a station's protected contour. Plus, to the average listener an HD carrier sounds like white noise & they think it's weak signal. Nobody thinks to complain about interference. They just move on to something else.

I've heard on and on about how great the HD-2 formats are going to be, but all I've observed is more lame cookie-cutter radio taking away the reception that I once enjoyed. The audio quality is nothing to write home about either. But HD radio has caused us to adapt. My wife & I listen to web radio more than terrestrial radio now, since there are fewer choices on the dial.

No, the FCC has made a judgement on how far and how long a stations signal would be protected.

That's the established standard. The days of clear-channels being protected nationwide are over.

> Plus, to the average listener an HD carrier sounds like white noise & they

The large broadcast companies do engineering research and audience research.
There has been no widespread complaints (if any at all), and there is no indication that people "move onto something else".

> I've heard on and on about how great the HD-2 formats are going to be, but

THe formats on HD are quiite similar to what was on FM in the early to mid 60's. Music intensive, non-commercial, some simulcasting to improve coverage, and mostly automated.

> The audio quality is nothing to write home about either.

The public has had no complaints about HD audio quality. And like the qualities of MP3's, which is "nothing to write home about" either, it's "good enough" and the public isn't complaining.

> But HD radio has caused us to adapt. My wife & I listen to web radio more

I'd be interested in knowing where you are, and what station(s) you can no longer listen too due to HD radio.

Ok, regardless of your political leanings, does anyone think this is a good thing? What if Bush tried to shut down Air America? What then?

The fact is that FOX and especially Beck have proven their credibility with their stories on, and subsequent government disassociation with, Van Jones and ACORN.

If you are a Democrat, try to separate yourself from the political scoreboard for just a minute and think if the roles were reversed here. If MSNBC was calling out members of the Bush white house and suddenly the Bush came out and declared them an opponent!?!

No argument there. I'm just saying that stations have listeners outside their protected contours. I volunteer at a local non-comm and we have many subscribers who listen well outside our protected contour. Not only do they listen, but they donate money. That surely says something.

> I'd be interested in knowing where you are, and what station(s) you can no > longer listen too due to HD radio.

I live sometimes in the San Francisco Bay Area and sometimes in Pioneer, CA (in the Sierras) In my case the interference happened on these frequencies:

107.5 KPIG - used to be receivable throughout the South Bay until 107.7 in San Francisco turned on HD
95.9 KRSH - we used to listen to them at home before 95.7 turned on HD, generally too weak to hear in a car.
91.5 KKUP - used to be receivable way up the peninsula and into Oakland before 91.7 turned on HD
89.5 KVMR - used to be receivable throughout Sacramento until 89.3 turned on HD

KKUP and KVMR actually receive interference inside their protected contours, and inside their city of license, due to terrain shielding and power/HAAT discrepancy issues. Another instance where the FCC is completely blind to the real world.

Interestingly enough, a few years ago I had a fence built and some extensive landscaping done. The guys doing the work were complaining that they couldn't get KPIG anymore no matter where they were on a job. They were using a better-than-average boom box, but nothing special. One of them was fiddling with the antenna and got a hint of the station's audio, buried in digital carriers. He said - "nope, it doesn't work here either" and they switched to the local classic rock station. I knew why, but of course they had no idea. That's only an example of one. Maybe the only one. But I find it interesting.

I firmly believe that this will shake out one way or the other. Either with an expanded radio band, better digital accesss, ipv6 multicast, UDP with forward error correction, etc. There are a lot of ways looming on the horizon for creative people to be heard. Meanwhile, we do what we can.

For traveling around the globe apologizing for America.

For being a week-kneed wimp on Iran and N. Korea. They have no fear of the USA now because they know Hussein is too big of a coward to do anything against them and their pursuit of nuclear weapons.

For his remark in July when he said at a press conference that the police who arrested Harvard Professor Henry Louis Gates had acted "stupidly", when he knew nothing of the facts of what happened.

For continuing to claim the stimulus package is working and saving jobs when it isn't. Jobs are continuing to be lost.

For bowing to a Saudi King

For caving to the Russians on missile defense.

For stumbling around on sending more troops to Afghanistan, which his top Generals are asking for, while brave American soldiers are dying because they don't have the support they need. Flag draped coffins don't seem to be important to Hussein.

For being the bumbling fool he is on just about policy he has come up with.

You say that and call me "idiot". How ironic.

Like I said, when you see the main stream media take Hussein to task for any of his policies, let me know.

Democrat Quotes on Iraq Weapons of Mass Destruction

"One way or the other, we are determined to deny Iraq the capacity to develop weapons of mass destruction and the missiles to deliver them.
That is our bottom line."
--President Bill Clinton, Feb. 4, 1998

"If Saddam rejects peace and we have to use force, our purpose is clear. We want to seriously diminish the threat posed by Iraq's weapons of mass destruction program."
--President Bill Clinton, Feb. 17, 1998

"Iraq is a long way from [here], but what happens there matters a great deal here. For the risks that the leaders of a rogue state will use nuclear, chemical or biological weapons against us or our allies is the greatest security threat we face."
--Madeline Albright, Feb 18, 1998

"He will use those weapons of mass destruction again, as he has ten times since 1983."
--Sandy Berger, Clinton National Security Adviser, Feb, 18, 1998

"[W]e urge you, after consulting with Congress, and consistent with the U.S. Constitution and laws, to take necessary actions (including, if appropriate, air and missile strikes on suspect Iraqi sites) to respond effectively to the threat posed by Iraq's refusal to end its weapons of mass destruction programs."
Letter to President Clinton, signed by:
-- Democratic Senators Carl Levin, Tom Daschle, John Kerry, and others, Oct. 9, 1998

"Saddam Hussein has been engaged in the development of weapons of mass destruction technology which is a threat to countries in the region and he has made a mockery of the weapons inspection process."
-Rep. Nancy Pelosi (D, CA), Dec. 16, 1998

"Hussein has ... chosen to spend his money on building weapons of mass destruction and palaces for his cronies."
-- Madeline Albright, Clinton Secretary of State, Nov. 10, 1999

"There is no doubt that ... Saddam Hussein has reinvigorated his weapons programs. Reports indicate that biological, chemical and nuclear programs continue apace and may be back to pre-Gulf War status. In addition, Saddam continues to redefine delivery systems and is doubtless using the cover of a licit missile program to develop longer-range missiles that will threaten the United States and our allies."
Letter to President Bush, Signed by:
-- Sen. Bob Graham (D, FL), and others, Dec 5, 2001

"We begin with the common belief that Saddam Hussein is a tyrant and a threat to the peace and stability of the region. He has ignored the mandate of the United Nations and is building weapons of mass destruction and th! e means of delivering them."
-- Sen. Carl Levin (D, MI), Sept. 19, 2002

"We know that he has stored secret supplies of biological and chemical weapons throughout his country."
-- Al Gore, Sept. 23, 2002

"Iraq's search for weapons of mass destruction has proven impossible to deter and we should assume that it will continue for as long as Saddam is in power."
-- Al Gore, Sept. 23, 2002

"We have known for many years that Saddam Hussein is seeking and developing weapons of mass destruction."
-- Sen. Ted Kennedy (D, MA), Sept. 27, 2002

"The last UN weapons inspectors left Iraq in October of 1998. We are confident that Saddam Hussein retains some stockpiles of chemical and biological weapons, and that he has since embarked on a crash course to build up his chemical and biological warfare capabilities.

Intelligence reports indicate that he is seeking nuclear weapons..."
-- Sen. Robert Byrd (D, WV), Oct. 3, 2002

"I will be voting to give the President of the United States the authority to use force -- if necessary -- to disarm Saddam Hussein because I believe that a deadly arsenal of weapons of mass destruction in his hands is a real and grave threat to our security."
-- Sen. John F. Kerry (D, MA), Oct. 9, 2002

"There is unmistakable evidence that Saddam Hussein is working aggressively to develop nuclear weapons and will likely have nuclear weapons within the next five years ... We also should remember we have always underestimated the progress Saddam has made in development of weapons of mass destruction."
-- Sen. Jay Rockefeller (D, WV), Oct 10, 2002

"He has systematically violated, over the course of the past 11 years, every significant UN resolution that has demanded that he disarm and destroy his chemical and biological weapons, and any nuclear capacity.
This he has refused to do"
-- Rep. Henry Waxman (D, CA), Oct. 10, 2002

"In the four years since the inspectors left, intelligence reports show that Saddam Hussein has worked to rebuild his chemical and biological weapons stock, his missile delivery capability, and his nuclear program. He has also given aid, comfort, and sanctuary to terrorists, including al Qaeda members ... It is clear, however, that if left unchecked, Saddam Hussein will continue to increase his capacity to wage biological and chemical warfare, and will keep trying to develop nuclear weapons."
-- Sen. Hillary Clinton (D, NY), Oct 10, 2002

"We are in possession of what I think to be compelling evidence that Saddam Hussein has, and has had for a number of years, a developing capacity for the production and storage of weapons of mass destruction."
-- Sen. Bob Graham (D, FL), Dec. 8, 2002

"Without question, we need to disarm Saddam Hussein. He is a brutal, murderous dictator, leading an oppressive regime ... He presents a particularly grievous threat because he is so consistently prone to miscalculation ... And now he is miscalculating America's response to his continued deceit and his consistent grasp for weapons of mass destruction ... So the threat of Saddam Hussein with weapons of mass destruction is real..."
-- Sen. John F. Kerry (D, MA), Jan. 23. 2003

Important like it was to Bush who made it against the law to photograph

Are you sure you aren't talking about Bush here? There have been at

Most radio stations do not make any money from DX listeners. Stations are not interested in servicing areas outside of their assigned license.

People listening in the metro area of a signals are going to be deprived so a few people on the outskirts are able to pick up an out of town signal?

You do understand that the CIA has admitted lying (distorted and misinformation) to congress for years about information from Iraq and therefor the above quotes are mostly moot. GW's reasoning for war was based on his selected cronie staff who mostly knew the truth but they had their own agendas.

And, you republiCAN'Ts still keep blaming Palosi!

The only reason I watch FAUX now and then is to see the total insanity of the ass hats. I suspect there are manyt who do the same. It's quite entertaining. Creditability? NOT! In fact, all of the professional news community has isolated themselves from anything `FAUX' awaiting the impending implosion.

BTW, ACORN was a setup. I suspect that someday someone will go from GOP office to GOP office with a set of hookers and eventually some young intern will fall for the same trap. low-brow reporting like that is how FAUX got it's start. The more FAUX waves that ACORN flag of stupidity, the more the people see the truth.

You made a generalization about how many stations are still in mono...I asked you to back up that statement...and you couldn't.

Just as you made a generalization about how many stations weren't in mono. Also without any support.

I'm sure you don't drive the backroads with a pad and paper recording calls, city of license, and whether the pilot is lit. Neither do I. On a road trip, I may hear 15 radio stations a day. I don't record the calls. And they may be 40 miles from where I'm rolling at the time. The only reason I noticed the stations I noticed is because the pilot wasn't lit. But I certainly didn't spend any effort to find out who, or where, they were.

I might suggest this: The next time you travel, scan the dial. See if you don't find a couple, yourself.

And then see if you can recall the name and location when someone asks you the following week.:)

For the curious--Receiver in use: Drake SW-8 under dash, with Hirschmann active on roof. And yes, with full stereo audio into the vehicle speaker system. Where available.

So do you think that it's proper for the white house to attack FOX news or no? Do you think the government should shut them down?

The reason I'm asking is because Air America was afforded their view and they went on CONSTANT attack of the Bush Administration. And the people were there for entertainment purposes, none of them were broadcasters for the most part, Jerry Springer, Janeane Garofalo, Al Franken, all entertainers.

I know you probably feel like they deserve it, but a lot of people feel like the Obama administration deserve it.
What is your answer?

Well, if you have some tangible proof of what you're saying, you could make quite a name for yourself right now by letting it loose. As would anyone with proof of a hint that it was a GOP setup.

But it was a setup bottom line, and showed ACORN for what they were.

Until proven otherwise.

Do you dispute that there most stations are in stereo?

Then do a little research.

I don't know the last time I picked up a station that was in mono on FM
(unless it was a pirate.)

If I DID hear one in mono...I'd certainly remember it.

And your N95 will have even less of a chance of being able to access the AT&T W-CDMA network than it does now. Please don't encourage people to use 3G bandwidth like that. Hopefully the wireless carriers will start to limit usage on the iPhone and other 3G phones by switching to tiered pricing.

I just bought an HD capable stereo from Crutchfield for one of my vehicles (not because of the HD, the HD is standard on most new mobile audio systems, but for the Bluetooth, iPod connectivity, and USB storage devices support). I haven't installed it yet, but from what I've seen there actually is some good content on the HD channels.

iBiquity just wants to make its system the digital radio standard so the company has value when they sell it. As analog radio goes the way of analog television they want to be like Qualcomm is with 3G. They aren't making any money now.

There are revenue opportunities in HD for the broadcasters that go beyond simple advertising spots. Stations that don't take advantage of these opportunities aren't too bright.

That was never in dispute.

You'd be more likely to believe the results if you looked it up than if I told you about them. But you're not likely to find whether or not the pilot is lit in any of the databases. It's not something that's listed.

I remember it, too. I just don't remember which station of the 9 or so I heard in that region. Keep in mind you're talking about a drive that was 700+ miles long, with stations 40 miles and more from where I was at the moment. That's a band 700 miles long, and at least 80 miles wide.

Lots of stations in there to look up.

But if you'd like the route, it was from Collinsville, Oklahoma to Chicago, mostly on 44 in Missouri, and 55 in Illinois.

All of which may or may not be of interest beyond the academic.

The point is that there are still FM stations in mono, and some of them are doing quite well.

A large number of recent FM conversions (sports/talkers) are extinguishing the stereo lamp. No need for stereo on these stations, and it does save a small amount on energy bills and increases the SNR on the fringes.

It's really not. Many new car sound systems come "HD Ready". This has always been a lie. Just like "HDTV Ready" was. All it means is you have a connector in the back to plug a converter or tuner into, which costs a bunch of extra money, and I don't know a single person outside of a couple in this group that have ever bought one.

Nobody "attacked" Fox News. They pointed out that they are very partisan and lacking in objectivity, and they blur the line between opinion and news.

Air America Radio is not trying to call itself a news organization.

How would it save energy? FM just turns carrier into sidebands; the current never changes.

You actually proved my point. The blue area (while we all know that's only predicted) is just about exactly where I used to receive the signals on my stock 1996 Chevy pickup FM radio in the pre-HD days. KVMR was a little better because their transmitter is so high off the valley floor.

> Most radio stations do not make any money from DX listeners. Stations are > not interested in servicing areas outside of their assigned license.

KPIG used to have ads for Streetlight Records in San Jose, as well as some of the Stevens Creek car dealers. KVMR was very interested in their ability to cover Sacramento. So much so that they had a translator there for a while. While your statement is probably correct for the conglomerates, there certainly are exceptions.

> People listening in the metro area of a signals are going to be deprived so
> a few people on the outskirts are able to pick up an out of town signal?

Given the penetration of HD receivers, you could also say "a few people in the metro area of a signal are going to be deprived" so that other people in the metro can pick up a weaker signal. I check the HD-2 broadcasts of our local channels probably twice a week just to see if they decided to do anything interesting. Sometimes I hear silence, sometimes the same song over & over, sometimes the PAD doesn't match the program, and sometimes the errors go unnoticed for days. That probably means nobody is listening.

There's no way of knowing for sure, but I suspect that the number of listeners that KKUP lost in the Bay Area far exceeds the number of people listening to KALW in HD. Likewise, the number of listeners that KVMR lost in Sacramento probably exceeds the number of people listening to KQEI in HD. Also - why is it that the interference area extends so far beyond where an HD radio will lock? Is the system really that bad?

All equipment draws power, that includes the stereo multiplex generator. If they can switch that off, they save a few dollars a month on electricity.

Air america did not attempt to destroy the country to win the presidency. Nor did it create fake news or entrapments, only biased opinion. There was no call to violent action other then voting. no tea-baggers or nut case roundups. There was a few million of private investment behind the creation of Air america, but it was not funded by by $billion$ monopolistic practices such as FAUX.

>Well, if you have some tangible proof of what you're saying,

Read the press releases by acorn and other media outlets to what they discovered when they tried to get the raw footage. Edited video can be so misleading. I'm waiting for the non-partisan commission to finishes their investigation before I make my judgment. FAUX has too much of a hand into the creation of this story as it's only "entertainment".

1793. The Shiny Object of Realism in Democracy?

From:
http://www.radiotalkingpoints.com/articles/2009_radiotalkingpoints_article_0036_Oct_13_PositiveRealismRushWillNotFumbleTheBall.html

Fumbling the Democratic Football?

Hells Bells, (ACDC rock band tune) if you change the lyrics to say if you are fighting evil you're a friend of mine (instead of the word into)? Well, that would make great background music for the splash page? We may never know...

Before I begin today, let me reference yesterday's article about the minimum wage and the accusation of whether or not I thought that Rush thought his listener(s) are stupid. That might be called a penalty in a football game, he called the play at the end of the game or his show, and left the conversation hanging in my opinion about the minimum wage. He didn't have time to explain in detail how that effects the economy, but a new listener to his show could come to what conclusion?

Honestly, this is not about Rush Limbaugh. If you want to be Gosh Darn Golly Gee Honest about what the dollar is, and what it means, then be careful what you wish for, because we are not going to throw out the Democrats to let the Republicans fumble the ball again? The problem is it is not a game anymore? We have ruthless politicians around the world that murder citizens that they don't like, that voice their mandates, and they call themselves a Democracy?

Well, I must apologize for not calling over the phone Rush Limbaugh for his take on the matter. That's why I did not call Rush Limbaugh to ask why he said that, number one, this is a series, of articles, written daily, and the explanations for what I say may not be apparent that day. I also took the way he said what he said, as though that was final, he had already made up his mind?

Well I am sorry for not calling you Rush, and talking about you without offering all of the available explanations surrounding the event in question, because I will not be mistaken for Rev Wind Mistaken. Revving up the winds of doubt and mistrust, about Rush Limbaugh? Not me, not today, not unless he does something stupid. Asking the question is not the same as describing an event, noun, verb, adjective, or whatever, is it? A question is a question, how you answer it depends on you?

So this is about the media fumbling the ball? If you can't explain the value of the dollar, how can you expect your member of Congress to represent your desires, or worse, discover when we need to throw out members of Congress that are not protecting or regulating the dollar? I can illustrate this simply by a common thing many Americans, enjoy, that Rush Limbaugh, may not, is shopping in the ninety nine cent store?

Maybe the Rev Wind Mistaken can help us with this one? After all, we must explain the concepts of social justice to those who rev up the winds of doubt and trust in government through their negligence of explaining the issues? How many negro high school drop outs would we have if Bill Cosby was on the Cover of Time Magazine 7 or 8 times a year?

Pardon me, Rev Wind Mistaken, I have Attention Definition Disorder. Getting back to the ninety nine cent store, which has no historical significance to either the anti-Christ, abortion, or Obama (for those who are mentally challenged and their minds wander away from the conversation) what do you say when you pick up an object in the ninety nine cent store?

Yoda says pick up, you will? Yes Jedi Master, I will now demonstrate my powers of levitivity for you? What is the minimum wage? A little over six dollars an hour, or in terms that the high school drop out can understand, one dollar for ten minutes of your time. Can you honestly say to yourself, that you could make anything in a ninety nine cent store, within the space of ten minutes? No, you can not. Why? Is it explained by currency trading? No. Why? Some things are made in different countries, and some of them in the United States!

OMG!, well then how do things get sold in a ninety nine cent store, does it come from the Obama stash? Is it dropped from the sky by Chinese billionares? Of course not, items in a ninety nine cent store, perhaps not all, but the majority of, come from mechanical reproduction lines, the industrial revolution. Produce that we buy from the store is evidence of intellectual power, that coordinates the mass production and distribution of materials and labor at a profit.

In other words one kid in the class took his crayon out, drew a picture, and Glenn Beck went and dug out the ore by hand (imaginary Obama hard labor retribution laws are awful) (just kidding Glenn) and another kid took the picture and the ore, and made a machine, and another kid ran the machine, and another kid wrapped up so many things per hour, so you could buy something with less than the amount of money that it represents for you to actually stand in line and wait ten minutes? That is a miracle?

And that is what your dollar today represents, and it may not tommorrow? If the value of the dollar is worth at least ten minutes of your time, and you can purchase something that obviously takes longer than that to make, is that not only an economic miracle, but an underscore of how social justice is represented by freedom from the government?

What really made the ninety nine cent widget? Skills. Education. Not the minimum wage. The miracle of the industrial revolution is that your purchasing power is only limited by the skills and physical limits of those making the products, not by units of time measured in different activities.

So this is the boiling down to where Rev Wind Mistaken(s) out there can think about their choice of words a little more carefully in the future? Bribing votes in a Democracy results in negligent poverty when politicians award benefits to those who opt out of participating in the industrial revolution, refusing to learn skills, refusing to create things others need?

Democracy disguised as looting, or revolutionary backwards type dictatorships only accomplish what, tweaking the media to appeal to those communities where the high school drop out rate approaches 70 percent? Do you have any idea how aggravating to watch a news station conduct on the street interviews for people voting for mayor, and honestly say, they don't know who they are voting for, two days before the election, or why?

These are the people who are going to kick you out of your house by jacking up property taxes you may not be able to pay due to rampant spending so large you will never find all the money because it is spread out everywhere, and they are "clean cut", polite talkers, and will distract you with shiny objects to take your mind off the direct connection between spending, rising tax rates, and rising insurance rates due to increased values?

Shiny objects such as queers in Congress with buddies in the mortgage industry that benefit from rising property values? Only 30 percent of voters are expected to vote for a mayoral race, because the media wants you to believe it does not matter?

Why the media would never do that, would they, censor out the people that are going to vote, saying "hell ya I'm gonna throw those bums out of office", or is the editor going to pick out some goof ball that says he does not care (or is silent because afraid of union thugs knocking on his door?)? Is this the kind of Democracy you really want?

Getting back to Rev Wind Mistaken, social justice is why America is so wonderful, so great, and not an experiment. It is a gift from God because the founders understood the principals of slavery. They understood that the rich will rule the poor, and designed a system where by political momentum, create a society where everyone can get rich. That has been achieved, they call it freedom.

We of course have voluntary slavery, called credit financing, Rev Wind Mistaken(s) out there, and some of them wear football jerseys? The bottom line is they want to censor Rush Limbaugh by calling him a racist, and I applaud Rush Limbaugh today for finally demanding that these people retract their baseless accusations? They want to destroy Rush Limbaugh by making new listeners hate him before they hear him? God pays back the evil of stealing audience members seven fold?

I wish it ended there, but it does not? If intellectual based income (services, books, magazines, novelties, whatever) is limited by the spending power of your citizens, then what has to happen if the supply is greater than the demand? If 60 percent of your workforce is unemployed, and they all wrote a book, would your economy function if every book was sold?

I doubt it, you have to know the discretionary income of your citizens in order to calculate that, and believe me, they are spending the equivalent of eons figuring out how and what you spend your money on? If you come to the conclusion that you can not create jobs by everyone writing books, or computer programs, or whatever else services involve, what is left? The industrial revolution, running a machine? Is a professional football game based on labor, or intellectual hype that makes money?

So cap and tax, or tax and kill seniors, will do what? Fire up the banana peels, to design and run new machines, or Fire up the banana peels, and wonder why they are not high on the economic ladder scale? We then see that a minimum wage can play a valuable role in society, but hight tech skills is realism. Is the minimum wage a result of positive thinking, when the real agenda is to fool the poor, and create communism and unions? Did some National Public Rip Off Radio Station mention a book today about how positive thinking, the lack there of, is why there are so many negro high school drop outs, with poor manners and a history of not being reliable, and then play a bunch of classical music to make them watch the burial of their nation while enjoying their day? Did you watch the snow fall today, all most like she enjoyed figuring out how Americans will not avoid these taxes? Do snow flakes have genders, or do Republicans have any, pause, way to change this?

Well .. .now we know we're dealing with Chuckie ... When faced with a

Don't know what planet you were on. I saw plenty of coverage on CNN and MSNBC of the 9/12 events.

The protest in Washington, DC was nowhere near the largest.

According to the figures given out by law enforcement officials, it was also nowhere near as large as the numbers protest organizers claimed.

having one record store or a car dealer advertising is not an indicator that much money was pulled from that area. it could have been part of a multi station buy, rep firm, or a dealer looking to take advantage of a hole in the market.

like jo jo said....like FM in the early days. I remember hearing automation fail on the early FM's...and i was always interested in how long it would be before someone at the station noticed. multiple sources audio dead air an element repeating over and over.

doesnt mean no one was listening.

thats right...you'll never know...so you can only speculate. however, the people with the money at risk, the investors and mangers who see the research have a better understanding of where the listeners are and wherre the money is. i trust their understanding of this is better than yours once again, as jo jo asked....can you name one that has extinguished their stereo pilot?

i think a lot of people use the stereo light for tuning so it might hurt listenership even if its not needed.

Don't you feel better now? The most transparent administration in history?
Speaking of don't tell, how long will my employer paid health insurance policy remain in force when I revoke the authority for the insurance company to access, or use, my personal information, after I make a written notification such as the following:
Dear Insurance Company
Effective today, xx/xx/xx, you are no longer authorized by myself, first name, last name, to use my personal identification information, for any insurance policy, or other reasons, regarding any past, present, or future products that you sell or administer, after this point in time, any use of my personal information after this notification will violate my privacy rights granted under the Privacy Act of 1974, and as such, you must permanently destroy, and no longer use, my personal information for any reason.
Signed, the oppressed citizen who is calling to God to stop this oppressive government from intruding into my life
Second Letter
Dear Employer
Effective today, xx/xx/xx, you are no longer authorized by myself, first name, last name, to use my personal identification information, related to any insurance policy that you hold in force after this point in time, for any insurance policy, or other reasons, regarding any past, present, or future health care or other employee benefit products that you sell or administer will violate my privacy rights granted under the Privacy Act of 1974, and as such, you must permanently destroy, and no longer use, my personal information used for any administrative purposes to enable, maintain, create, or authorize any health care plans, for any reason.
The reason for this revocation is the affliction without compensation the burden of maintaining by government illegal mandate to purchase or pay taxes on a product that I do not want, which violate my fifth amendment, civil rights, and paying taxes on such a product, or purchasing of such a product, will force me to be financially negligent in my personal affairs, of which, is my responsibility and not the government's.
Signed, skilled worker who uses machines that depend on cheap energy to keep me from being unemployed, and as a matter of protest against government meddling in my personal affairs, will not seek to spend or borrow any more money then I have to?

Suggested Government Pamphlet Mailing? In order to make things at the White House Census department run more smoothly, we should mail TO ALL CITIZENS of the world, at tax payer expense, the following information?

Dear potential illegal alien,

In order to make your illegal deportation process go more smoothly, since we anticipate that you will enter our country at some time in the future illegally, please fill out the enclosed hotel reservation form? Please also indicate what state and county you will be entering the country, so that we can notify local Acorn offices to inform the local sherrif that they will hold gay parades in front of the court house, and it is their duty not to enforce the laws?

Please also indicate how many friends and family you will be bringing with you, including, but not limited to, all underage hookers, and the amount of narcotics or money that Acorn will need to launder under their don't ask don't tell policy? Thank you for your cooperation, we look forward to seeing you soon in the United States!

As a bonus package, please fill out the enclosed Census form, so that we may conduct surveys about what to include in your benefits package while at your temporary, but perhaps indefinite stay at a local Democrat supporter who just happens to own a nursing home, or a hotel, paid for by stupid Americans that will pay for anything signed into law by phantom amendments, to imaginary Congressional Bills with no text?

Remember, your participation in redrawing Congressional districts will ensure that mmm mmm mmm Barack Hussein Obama, will conduct a totally fair Census count, that will stack the odds against legitimate voters from stopping our gleeful, enjoyable, recreational, more fun than a conservative is allowed to have, looting of the American economy?

Signed, Barack Obama and the Imaginary Demo Crap Party? Remember, we must ignore, the public option, in 2010?

Being that this is the most powerful keyboard in the world, making sure that we don't worry about the status quo, you've got to ask yourself a question...?

That used to be true. FM Mono Mute was commonplace in home receivers. Until better designs permitted lower noise stereo listening. Keep in mind that many stations killed the pilot during mono programming. Some NPR stations still do. WBEZ, Chicago still does this. So does WFMT. Though mono programming is rare, today.
Today, selectable FM stereo itself is comparatively rare in low and midlevel receiver design, with most FM capable receivers simply hardwired to stereo, allowing the 'Blend' circuit to handle low signal noise avoidance by progressively combining the two channels as a function of signal strength, until eventually deep fringe reception is in mono. So FM Mono Mute is no longer a useful function, and like selectable stereo, is not included in many receiver designs. In fact, many car radios no longer even include a stereo pilot indicator. GM Car radios haven't included a stereo pilot indicator for a number of years, now, or even a selectable Mono function. The blend circuit, instead, reduced stereo separation to control low signal noise, so there is no loss of reception during mono broadcasting. I've got two Walkman portables that do not have a stereo indicator, nor selectable mono reception, relying on a blend circuit for FM noise control.

Hi Ace. prices are out of site. the used prices are killers.
i'm guessing over $2K, maybe closer to $3K.

Legitimate criticism solidly based in fact is not "coming after Fox News," there, Glenn and deflecting criticism by invoking the Holocaust over something this minor is probably not the best idea.

I can see that you have a perspective that is left slanted, so let me give you the right perspective:

AAR undermined America's efforts overseas by constantly ridiculing the president and dismissing our troops efforts as useless. To say that they didn't form to drive the Republicans out of power is ridiculous, because I listened to AAR every day. It was their war cry. Proof of that is the fact that they almost don't exist today.

Randi Rhodes did a bit that implied that Bush should have been offed like the mob does, I challenge you to come up with any call to violent action by FOX

And you don't even want to go there as far as funding is concerned.
They literally stole money from a children's charity to finance themselves, and Soros bankrolled them throughout their life.

I also challenge you to show how anyone tried to shut them down like the current playground in power has done to FOX.

Yeah, so they fired the people based on bad editing. I'm sure those people are suing ACORN as we speak.

I'm REALLY glad I'm not in a position where I feel compelled to make excuses for ACORN. Or this administration for that matter. It's very liberating.

- How would it save energy?
- FM just turns carrier into sidebands;
- the current never changes.

=IF= As your yourself 'Dave' have stated that the same FM 'Mono' Radio Signal [ERP] goes farther than a 'Stereo' signal from the FM Station : Then there is an effective improvement in the coverage area of the signal without an increase in Power.
-translation- Energy Improvement = Cost Savings

You can just insert a 19 KHz whistle into the program stream to light the "Stereo" indicator, right?

Who says radio has to be a business? It's really not that capital intensive. You can run a station really well on donations.

Actually, a production person in Florida did the Bush bit, Ms. Robertson was unaware of its contents before it aired.

One of the early backers of Air America turned out to be a flake and a fraud. It is suspected he was a Republican saboteur. Mike Papantonio (trial lawyer) is reputed to be the deep pockets in charge right now.
Air America lives.

You can't do real news without stepping on sponsors' feet sometimes. A so-called All News station that relies on advertising is a fraud. They just advance the corporate goals and fuck everyone else.

Broadcast licenses are issued in the public interest, convenience and necessity.

- i think a lot of people use the stereo light for tuning
- so it might hurt listenership even if its not needed.

Be it Manual Tune -and-or- Auto Scan/Seek :
Radio Listeners 'know' what they like to listen too and once they find it : They hit a Pre-Set and after that it becomes a no-brainer to tune-in again.

Dave the FCC and your 'local' US Congressperson define "The Public Interest" as a Strong Local Economy aided by a Local Media Market with a diversity of Advertisers resulting in Enhanced Tax Revenues to all levels of Government.

Which of course is a lie, and she commented after the bit and made a gunshot sound with her mouth, insinuating that she agreed with the sentiment. I heard it as it happened.

Yeah, right. And were there some subsequent saboteurs that explain how they got horrible ratings and were quickly pulled off markets one by one? They got to the point where there were maybe one or two shows on the air during the week or maybe a couple on the weekend and they considered the whole station part of the AAR network.

Air America disappeared from my market about a year ago due to lousy ratings, yet the former "Mrs. Robertson" is still on a county away

Ace, do yourself a big favour and splurge out on an Icom IC-7600. It's a fantastic radio for SW and MW DXing with every top spec and bell and whistle you could wish for. You'll be the happiest chap in Michigan.

Don't waste your time on unproven AOR technology - Icom are the tops in the latest DSP technology and their 7600 is simply awesome.

Which statement do you need proof of? That most of the FM's in the country are in stereo? Or that the engineers that suggested not turning on the stereo pilot are mired in the past?

Which do you have trouble comprehending?

Excuse me...that wasn't the discussion. Your assertion was that ALL FM's in the country are stereo. That no mono FM's have survived.

You can't change the ball once it's in play.

There are surviving mono FM stations. Few in number. But I made that point, myself.

> Or that the engineers that suggested not turning on the > stereo pilot are mired in the past?

Also a point that was not in dispute. It's still done. But it's largely unnecessary. I'm not sure if there's been a rules change, but it was required by FCC that the pilot be killed when programming went to mono.

Since many new receivers no longer have a stereo indicator, nor mono mute, this is becoming an anachronism. I made that point myself.

Re-read the thread. It's all there.

Why you demand quarter that you, yourself, are unwilling to give.

Not so. Please explain which statement you need clarification on. I will gladly elaborate

On the other hand you couldnot point to one station to prove your point...never mind a "prosperous station".

Sorry, you lose.

Dave they make transceivers and they are not the best for our type of SW/MW DXing, where top line audio is required. The K3 is no good on MW at all and the audio is poor. The TT radio's are mainly on ham bands only and their general coverage receive is mediocre.

Hams that want top audio always go for Icom = they are tops.

As for specs, you have to compare apples with apples. Sherwood tests the radio's on the narrowest CW filter setting. If they were tested on AM with a 4.5 kHz filter the Icom would come out way tops.

No, here's the actual exchange...copied from this very page above. I did suggest you re-read the thread.

Did you notice that? You said ALL. Not most. Not virtually. You said, and quoting, here: "ALL. That no Mono FMs have survived.

And that's not true.

No, actually, again from the above, I said I encounter one or two a week when I'm on the road. And elsewhere in the thread I specified that they are not numerous, but the one I hear are doing well.

Nothing - I've ordered one. When I have it I will shake it down and let you know. But I disapprove of that type of DXing. I had a chat to my son in Atlanta about it. He said my DXing was like a single line sport fisherman, whereas Perseus is like seine net fishing where you throw out a huge net and catch every fish in the ocean.

He said that's not sport - shame on you Dad.

So I have mixed feelings about Perseus and will see.

Perhaps so. But I always figure that a "fringe" listener has some kind of special radio. Fringe or not, these stations used to be something as simple as a preset on my truck radio. Now they're gone, and so is the innovative programming they once provided. All I was saying (and the original point of my post) is that HD Radio has driven me and my wife to listen to web radio because there's nothing on the dial for us any more.

Well, not exactly. I asked that question because I know the answer, and dealt with a similar issue in the early '90s. The microprocessor in the HD receiver emits a huge amount of RF in the VHF region, essentially making the FM receiver deaf. Digital SCA receiver manufacturers had to solve this problem long ago and I'm wondering how long it's going to take the HD receiver manufacturers to fix it. There may be other problems besides self-interference, but it's definitely the elephant in the room.

Yes, and WLW isn't 500KW's anymore. Life goes on. ANd the clear-channels don't have the entire frequency to themselves nationwide anymore.

Time marches on.

The answer is that with DX-ing, since the broadcasters don't care about it, and the FCC doesn't care about it...it's table scraps.

You get what falls from the table.

I'm receiving S9+ here in the Netherlands, on a really crappy antenna.

Yesterday we had one of our frequent powerouts lasting nine hours. The only radio that can keep me in touch on those days is the Redsun RP2100. It is the only radio I own that will pick up my news/talk AM MW station from Cape Town 120 miles away. All my other radios are useless, including my new Grundig G8 Traveller II - I think I wasted my money.

Also the RP2100 is the only radio that will pick up the far distant FM that comes in over two high mountain ranges when my local TX is down.

It's not the best on HF SW but does reliably pick up BBC all the time.

I'm happier with my RP2100 than any other portable I ever owned, including a Sony 2010.
It's got lovely audio too - I think it's a good buy for $150, although I only paid $100 when I got it direct from China.

Duh. I'm talking about something much stronger, more local, and more reliable than skywave.

What does DXing have to do with the design of an HD receiver? Please re-read the post that you responded to.

I have another example too - the 98.9 and 99.1 pair here in the Bay Area. Each one interferes with the other, and by your definition I live in the "fringe" area of one, and barely within the coverage area of another. Both run HD, neither one locks reliably, and neither one provides static-free reception driving around. In the pre-HD days both of them provided perfect reception. This is a bit unique, because these two are simulcasted. They're killing themselves. But I strongly suspect that the coverage map being used by the salespeople at KSOL/KSQL doesn't exclude the zone of poor reception in between the 2 transmitters. They do quite well in the ratings, but I bet some non-technical beancounter is wondering why their shares in Fremont and Mountain View are so low.

I can appreciate the fact that people have poured lots of money into HD radio and they're desperate to protect their investment, hence all of the upstart attempts to convince the public to make the switch - like "team branded HD2's". But I still can't see how it'll take off with limited programming, compromised audio quality, and a myriad of competing program delivery systems, all of which are much less costly and far superior. It just doesn't make sense. The public today is pretty well educated, and even my friends who are gadget freaks and "first adopters" are not interested in HD Radio. Meanwhile, the noise in the existing radio bands drives listeners like me - people who really enjoy radio - to the web. I'm just hopeful this whole thing shakes out soon.

The RP2100/CCR-SWP is a very nice little radio. It's only real faults are the digital volume control and a propensity for birdies/artifacts on MW.

While the sensitivity of the PL-300wt/G8 can be variable on AM depending on alignment (and it really is a dog on SW and LW), it's surprising to hear that the Redsun out-performed it on FM. The Tecsun has the hottest front end ever on FM - a feature all the new DSP-based Tecsun and Kchibo portables seem to share.

First reviews on the Tecsun PL-310 are out, and they are very positive.
This is the DSP-based update of the famous PL-200/Eton E100 (which your Redsun is basically a copy of). I have one on the way!

Woops.

Mea culpa.

I'm confusing the large CCR-SW which you have, with the much smaller SWP.
With its larger antennae it's certainly expected that it would out-perform a pocket-sized radio on sensitivity.

That last sentence contains the reason HD Radio will die: no consumer interest. The industry can engage in all the masturbatory exercises it likes, but if the public is not interested, that's the end of the story. The public is not interested. The big push several years ago was to "educate the public" about HD Radio. Well, the public is not only educated now, but has post-graduate degrees. The public is willfully ignoring HD Radio.

That is the concern. HD Radio is done. There is no question about that from anyone who is awake. Eventually, its enthusiasts will figure it out. But by then, the damage to the core may be irreversible.

Even Radio World, the biggest shill HD Radio ever had is now saying to broadcasters, "Don't expect HD Radio to bail you out."

Such insight!

Michael Savage Needs to be Corrected?
Sometimes my favorite time of the day, is when I hear the Michael Savage show? You see, before the crooks started coming out in the open, and tanked the economy, when I hear Michael, I was working in over time territory? Could be, I've been wanting to mention more about Michael, and I want to write something positive about the guy, and not hurt his show? After hearing him, and visting his web site today, I'm not so sure anyone can do that, he uses both positive and negative projections on his show?

Honestly, I don't know the guy, I've probably spent about two hours reading his biographical descriptions, listen to him talk about himself, and I've come to the conclusion he is a liberal masquerading as a conservative in my humble opinion. Not sure I can get my arms around that, maybe he is a conservative growing in his viewpoints? I think he will talk about conservatism to get paid, but deep down I think he is a liberal, with liberal friends, and that is my impression? I've listened to about two dozen shows?

He could become a great conservative talk show host, but I suspect that will not happen for several reasons? Number one, a neurotic italian voice, with or without the accent, is just not entertaining after a while, you don't want to hear that voice? I love italian voices, it makes helps me remember my time in the North East? Seriously, who is it that are angry all the time? Liberals? Did he go to a liberal school? Did he participate or support "conservation"? To what extent?

Does he talk negatively about other conservative talk show hosts, calling them ugly names, like hemroids, and there are others I would like to forget? Well, sometimes we all talk like that, but you can hear the nuance between someone who calls you an ugly name, and is making a point, and not literally personally projecting your jealousy or hatred on them? Do you have to talk about yourself due to lack of imagination, or material, or both?

All right, you move along and start to think about the subject matter of his show. If you know what spook talk is, you get pretty sick of hearing it fairly quickly? Honestly, I don't know what the American facination is with murder, and murder shows, and violence, but there it is? That's a sentence you might hear from a Michael Savage show? He might then go on to spend 45 minutes explaining a murder he read about, or has an interest in?

That can be a negative and a positive? Positive, he's against murder, negative, uh, well, that's self explanatory. If I was a liberal, I would love the Michael Savage show, because he gets so emotional about what he is talking about, you begin to wonder if is actually bragging about what the communist crooks disguised as liberals, or other names, are actually accomplishing rather than just try to alarm you about it?

So what is wrong with emotional? Nothing, unless three quarters of your show, is about you? Seriously, that's another reason why nobody wants to write about the guy, he becomes a basket case with the slightest bit of realism, or critique? He'll mask those emotions by becoming sick, and give you a litany of how he will cook a marvelous dish to make him feel better, or worse go to a restuarant, tell you how he acted like a jerk and was rude as hell, and then felt like he was coming down with the flu or something, when he probably just ate off a plate that was not rinsed right, and turned his stomach? He then becomes an emotional basket case and goes after the chef or restuarant and talks as though he hopes they go out of business? What do you expect if you eat at restaurants all the time, odds are you are going to get a plate not rinse right, if you do the numbers?

But of course some people act like jerks, I should know, but they don't really mean to project that image? That's why I think he is a liberal, because his show consists of heavy projection? The other talk show hosts don't do that, do they? Well, that's my opinion, I don't listen to the guy everyday, sometimes he gets it right. Put him out of business? For the spook stuff related to Islam? Do the British think he is a spook for those related to Islam? Well, he certainly fits the profile?

The other side of the coin, is that the politicians in Britain simply want to send a message to all the slaves, on the British plantation, you better not listen to Michael Savage, and start thinking about conservative ideas, and throw us out of power? You might make our voters angry with us, because they might remember what having a set of testicles meant, when it comes to politics? OMG! Listening today he talked about Britain wanting to drug their slaves, with pure heroin, or how about the past radio shows where he talked about them sneaking around in unmarked vans, xraying your house to see how much electricity you are using so they can punish you?

OMG Dittos? Making fun of Rush Limbaugh out of jealousy? Since obviously you will get sick of the human condition, and call us all degenerates, and that only you are fit to breath the clear blue skies, and dream pure dreams, we are all infidels, perhaps you will explain to us how Tiger Woods got most of his critical training, at an "evil, all white guy golf club"? So, if I can't get into the BET awards, or a black dance club owned by a rapper, does that make me a horrible writer? Did it ever occur to you brothers of industry, captains of intellectual winds to carry us into the future, that perhaps, just perhaps, Rush Limbuagh simply wanted to join because the golf course (that's what the club is) is close to his house?

OK, after listening to Michael Savage, I come away with, he likes food, he hates violence, he hates corruption, and he hates stupid behavior that creates really, really, creepy people? Want a pysch profile? Facinated with topics of deception, facinated with violence, facinated with how to manipulate people, facinated with conservatives, facinated with religion, facinated with liberalism, facinated with enivronmentalism, facinated with history, and I could go on? Ah, the positives, negatives, intentions, clarifications? Nope, that's need to know only, and who needs to know?

Well, of course Michael, we won't let you off the hook today, will we? Your heavy use of projection needs to be corrected? Now then, who and what does the Secretary of State for the United States peform as their responsiblities and duties? Primarily, to act on behalf of the President of the United States. As Secretary of State, you represent the President of the United States. Sure, you can advise, but ultimately, any new policies are the President's, not the Secretary of State, regardless of negotiations, the Presiden owns them.

Also, foreign policies are confirmed by a majority in the Senate AND the President, the President can not solely determine United States foreign policy. They would never give that kind of power, unless the public had a sudden loss of memory, to one individual?

Personally, what they don't know, will not hurt the Russians? Do we really need a bunch of Russian "advisors" running around the United States at a time when half, or perhaps more, of your citizens are deeply suspicious and even in mistrust of your government, Mr. President? There is no basis for inspections of United States weapons facilities, many of which, I believe are in one location? If Hillary really wants to take the credit for this one, can we only ask the question, why was Hillary Clinton, whose majority of experience in the public realm of opinion, was as the focus of attention, then given a role where she could advise the President of the United States by being the eyes, and ears, and perhaps brains of the United States regarding foreign policy? How do you make that leap, without giving Bill Clinton credit?

Well, I'll keep this simple Michael, this was not Hillary's achievement, this is President Obama, potentially granting access to the Russians regarding top secret military, or alleged nuclear facilities, in exchange for what? Please do not give us an emotional footnote or platitude? Whatever you may feel about the past of America, workers have died horrible deaths, creating the weapons that allowed millions of goofy, liberal, mind experimenting drug induced liberals, to explore their deepest gratifications, absent from the threat of a military draft, are now asking those who have the most accurate weapons on the planet, the exact locations of facilities and where your weapons are? That is a reset button, or a luanch button?

Will Michael Savage connect the dots between Islamic organizations in Washington DC, and Mr. Obama, if any, or will you continue to pretend it is all Hillary's fault? Rush Limbaugh did not get the football team, did not get the opportunity to loose millions of hard earned dollars, and the left is leaping for joy? Oh, I am just so disappointed? Will Michael Savage give us a lecture on the morals of why football games should or should not be compared to ancient greek gladiator events? But of course not, today's intellectual and cultural creations of football have no comparison to olympic games, or gladiator events?

Honestly Michael Savage, or whatever your real name is, right now, we are not worried about your being labeled an Islamic spook, or a Conservative Evangelist, concerning your problems in Britain? If you want to get off the list in Britain, you are barking up the wrong tree, you need to stop projecting the affects of liberal policies of politicians on others, and lay your concerns where they actually belong, with Mr. Obama? Go ahead, make your day, listen to Michael Savage for yourself, and draw your own opinion? Will you draw a new opinion of the Great British Plantation, are they a jewel of truth, a model to the world, after learning from generations of failure, or are they reliving the past?

Being that this is the most powerful keyboard in the world, able to crush the egg shell minds of liberals, by either confusing them, or simply telling the truth, you've got to ask yourself a question?

Do you feel lucky?

How quaint.. Now, for the historic facts..

http://encarta.msn.com/encyclopedia_761568245_3/Fascism.html

Compared to Other Radical Right-Wing Ideologies

"Although fascism comes in many forms, not all radical right-wing movements are fascist. In France in the 1890s, for example, the Action Franï¿½aise movement started a campaign to overthrow the democratic government of France and restore the king to power. Although this movement embraced the violence and the antidemocratic tendencies of fascism, it did not develop the fascist myth of revolutionary rebirth through popular power. There have also been many movements that were simply nationalist but with a right-wing political slant. In China, for example, the Kuomintang (The Chinese National Peopleï¿½s Party), led by Chiang Kai-shek, fought leftist revolutionaries until Communists won control of China in 1949. Throughout the 20th century this type of right-wing nationalism was common in many military dictatorships in Latin America, Africa, and Asia. Fascism should also be distinguished from right-wing separatist movements that set out to create a new nation-state rather than to regenerate an existing one. This would exclude cases such as the Nazi puppet regime in Croatia during World War II. This regime, known as the Ustaï¿½e government, relied on paramilitary groups to govern, and hoped that their support for Nazism would enable Croatia to break away from Yugoslavia. This separatist goal distinguishes the Ustaï¿½e from genuine fascist movements."

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Fascism

Position in the political spectrum

"Fascism is normally described as "extreme right", but writers on the subject have often found placing fascism on a conventional left-right political spectrum difficult. There is a scholarly consensus that fascism was influenced by both the left and the right. A number of historians have regarded fascism either as a revolutionary centrist doctrine, as a doctrine which mixes philosophies of the left and the right, or as both of those things.

The historians Eugen Weber, David Renton, and Robert Soucy view fascism as on the ideological right. Rod Stackelberg argues that fascism opposes egalitarianism (particularly racial) and democracy, which according to him are characteristics that make it an extreme right-wing movement. Stanley Payne states that pre-war fascism found a coherent identity through alliances with right-wing movements. Roger Griffin argues that since the end of World War II, fascist movements have become intertwined with the radical right, describing certain groups as part of a "fascist radical right".

Walter Laqueur says that historical fascism "did not belong to the extreme Left, yet defining it as part of the extreme Right is not very illuminating either", but that it "was always a coalition between radical, populist ('fascist') elements and others gravitating toward the extreme Right".
Payne says "fascists were unique in their hostility to all the main established currents, left right and center", noting that they allied with both left and right, but more often the right. However, he contends that German Nazism was closer to Russian communism than to any other non-communist system."

Michael Savage Needs to be Corrected?
Sometimes my favorite time of the day, is when I hear the Michael Savage show? You see, before the crooks started coming out in the open, and tanked the economy, when I hear Michael, I was working in over time territory? Could be, I've been wanting to mention more about Michael, and I want to write something positive about the guy, and not hurt his show? After hearing him, and visiting his web site today, I'm not so sure anyone can do that, he uses both positive and negative projections on his show?

Honestly, I don't know the guy, I've probably spent about two hours reading his biographical descriptions, listen to him talk about himself, and I've come to the conclusion he is a liberal masquerading as a conservative in my humble opinion. Not sure I can get my arms around that, maybe he is a conservative growing in his viewpoints? I think he will talk about conservatism to get paid, but deep down I think he is a liberal, with liberal friends, and that is my impression? I've listened to about two dozen shows?

He could become a great conservative talk show host, but I suspect that will not happen for several reasons? Number one, a neurotic Italian voice, with or without the accent, is just not entertaining after a while, you don't want to hear that voice? I love Italian voices, it makes helps me remember my time in the North East? Seriously, who is it that are angry all the time? Liberals? Did he go to a liberal school? Did he participate or support "conservation"? To what extent?

Does he talk negatively about other conservative talk show hosts, calling them ugly names, like hemorrhoids, and there are others I would like to forget? Well, sometimes we all talk like that, but you can hear the nuance between someone who calls you an ugly name, and is making a point, and not literally personally projecting your jealousy or hatred on them? Do you have to talk about yourself due to lack of imagination, or material, or both?

hearing it fairly quickly? Honestly, I don't know what the American facination is with murder, and murder shows, and violence, but there it is? That's a sentence you might hear from a Michael Savage show? He might then go on to spend 45 minutes explaining a murder he read about, or has an interest in?

That can be a negative and a positive? Positive, he's against murder, negative, uh, well, that's self explanatory. If I was a liberal, I would love the Michael Savage show, because he gets so emotional about what he is talking about, you begin to wonder if is actually bragging about what the communist crooks disguised as liberals, or other names, are actually accomplishing rather than just try to alarm you about it?

So what is wrong with emotional? Nothing, unless three quarters of your show, is about you? Seriously, that's another reason why nobody wants to write about the guy, he becomes a basket case with the slightest bit of realism, or critique? He'll mask those emotions by becoming sick, and give you a litany of how he will cook a marvelous dish to make him feel better, or worse go to a restaurant, tell you how he acted like a jerk and was rude as hell, and then felt like he was coming down with the flu or something, when he probably just ate off a plate that was not rinsed right, and turned his stomach? He then becomes an emotional basket case and goes after the chef or restaurant and talks as though he hopes they go out of business? What do you expect if you eat at restaurants all the time, odds are you are going to get a plate not rinse right, if you do the numbers?

But of course some people act like jerks, I should know, but they don't really mean to project that image? That's why I think he is a liberal, because his show consists of heavy projection? The other talk show hosts don't do that, do they? Well, that's my opinion, I don't listen to the guy everyday, sometimes he gets it right. Put him out of business? For the spook stuff related to Islam? Do the British think he is a spook for those related to Islam? Well, he certainly fits the profile?

The other side of the coin, is that the politicians in Britain simply want to send a message to all the slaves, on the British plantation, you better not listen to Michael Savage, and start thinking about conservative ideas, and throw us out of power? You might make our voters angry with us, because they might remember what having a set of testicles meant, when it comes to politics? OMG! Listening today he talked about Britain wanting to drug their slaves, with pure heroin, or how about the past radio shows where he talked about them sneaking around in unmarked vans, x-raying your house to see how much electricity you are using so they can punish you?

OMG Dittos? Making fun of Rush Limbaugh out of jealousy? Since obviously you will get sick of the human condition, and call us all degenerates, and that only you are fit to breath the clear blue skies, and dream pure dreams, we are all infidels, perhaps you will explain to us how Tiger Woods got most of his critical training, at an "evil, all white guy golf club"? So, if I can't get into the BET awards, or a black dance club owned by a rapper, does that make me a horrible writer? Did it ever occur to you brothers of industry, captains of intellectual winds to carry us into the future, that perhaps, just perhaps, Rush Limbaugh simply wanted to join because the golf course (that's what the club is) is close to his house?

OK, after listening to Michael Savage, I come away with, he likes food, he hates violence, he hates corruption, and he hates stupid behavior that creates really, really, creepy people? Want a psych profile? Fascinated with topics of deception, fascinated with violence, fascinated with how to manipulate people, fascinated with conservatives, fascinated with religion, fascinated with liberalism, fascinated with environmentalism, fascinated with history, and I could go on? Ah, the positives, negatives, intentions, clarifications? Nope, that's need to know only, and who needs to know?

Well, of course Michael, we won't let you off the hook today, will we? Your heavy use of projection needs to be corrected? Now then, who and what does the Secretary of State for the United States perform as their responsibilities and duties? Primarily, to act on behalf of the President of the United States. As Secretary of State, you represent the President of the United States. Sure, you can advise, but ultimately, any new policies are the President's, not the Secretary of State, regardless of negotiations, the President owns them.

Also, foreign policies are confirmed by a majority in the Senate AND the President, the President can not solely determine United States foreign policy. They would never give that kind of power, unless the public had a sudden loss of memory, to one individual?

Personally, what they don't know, will not hurt the Russians? Do we really need a bunch of Russian "advisors" running around the United States at a time when half, or perhaps more, of your citizens are deeply suspicious and even in mistrust of your government, Mr. President? There is no basis for inspections of United States weapons facilities, many of which, I believe are in one location? If Hillary really wants to take the credit for this one, can we only ask the question, why was Hillary Clinton, whose majority of experience in the public realm of opinion, was as the focus of attention, then given a role where she could advise the President of the United States by being the eyes, and ears, and perhaps brains of the United States regarding foreign policy? How do you make that leap, without giving Bill Clinton credit?

Well, I'll keep this simple Michael, this was not Hillary's achievement, this is President Obama, potentially granting access to the Russians regarding top secret military, or alleged nuclear facilities, in exchange for what? Please do not give us an emotional footnote or platitude? Whatever you may feel about the past of America, workers have died horrible deaths, creating the weapons that allowed millions of goofy, liberal, mind experimenting drug induced liberals, to explore their deepest gratifications, absent from the threat of a military draft, are now asking those who have the most accurate weapons on the planet, the exact locations of facilities and where your weapons are? That is a reset button, or a launch button?

Will Michael Savage connect the dots between Islamic organizations in Washington DC, and Mr. Obama, if any, or will you continue to pretend it is all Hillary's fault? Rush Limbaugh did not get the football team, did not get the opportunity to loose millions of hard earned dollars, and the left is leaping for joy? Oh, I am just so disappointed? Will Michael Savage give us a lecture on the morals of why football games should or should not be compared to ancient Greek gladiator events? But of course not, today's intellectual and cultural creations of football have no comparison to Olympic games, or gladiator events?

Honestly Michael Savage, or whatever your real name is, right now, we are not worried about your being labeled an Islamic spook, or a Conservative Evangelist, concerning your problems in Britain? If you want to get off the list in Britain, you are barking up the wrong tree, you need to stop projecting the affects of liberal policies of politicians on others, and lay your concerns where they actually belong, with Mr. Obama? Go ahead, make your day, listen to Michael Savage for yourself, and draw your own opinion? Will you draw a new opinion of the Great British Plantation, are they a jewel of truth, a model to the world, after learning from generations of failure, or are they reliving the past?

Being that this is the most powerful keyboard in the world, able to crush the egg shell minds of liberals, by either confusing them, or simply telling the truth, you've got to ask yourself a question?

Do you feel lucky?

Get Ready for Some Football?
I am not disappointed that Rush Limbaugh will not risk his hard earned money, in a game. So I look forward to some real football, if you want to compare watching the political arena as you would a foot ball game.
There are going to be spears, there are going to be long throws, there are going to be first downs, there are going to be people that fumble the ball.

There are going to be pile ons, there are going to be cheer leaders, adult beverages, lousy food, lots of shouts, lots of boos, lots of laughter, and once in a blue moon, naked people running across the field. There will be strategies, giant advertisements, huddles, punts, fakes, confusion, chaos, bad weather, good weather, and divine intervention.

There will be owners, there will be losers, winners, there will be gossip, there will be drama, there will be commentators, there will be fights, there will be wars, and most of all, intense training and love for the game. Remember also, there is always another day, and people will change their minds, one day he may buy a football team? In the meantime, we must thank Rush Limbaugh for what he does, because he does not live for a game, but for the freedom of us all, to be all all we can be. So there is one thing left to remember?

There are people that think they are Mussolini, and get the ball intercepted, and like Mussolini, the only important thing to remember about that leader, was that he got his astro turf, kicked? What was the thing that the wife of Rocky said to him, after he was suffering the tugs of war between fighting, his love for the sport, and being a great husband, as she lay on the hospital bed?

WIN!

Are you ready for some football? Being this the most powerful keyboard in the world, able to fly supersonic, unable to shoot a missile, but able to turn inverted, and snap a picture, six inches from your canopy as you look up, and you see my grinning face, flying upside down, and you are left with only one question, one conclusion...

John,
Sometimes it works out that way, all the expensive bells and whistles go for naught, and the simple things work like charms! My CCrane/2100 is also a great signal grabber. Of course, I have old boatanchors that I love to play with, but I am finding that I can get more AM/DX with the CCrane and its built in dual ferrite antenna. Have you gotten your Kiwa Loop back on line? How did you enjoy your time in Atlanta?
Take care,
Bob

More likely an FM HD-Radio HD-2 Channel that the Radio Listening Public WANTS to Listen-To will be a Driving Force for most Audio Consumers who 'chose' FM HD-Radio as one of their Audio Produces.
http://www.hdradio.com/press_room.php?newscontent=44

The NFL Team Radio Channel is a Listener Focused HD-2 FM Radio Audio Product that should expand the Public Awareness of FM HD-Radio in 32 Major Media Markets across the USA.
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/NFL
? Can MLB be far behind ?
? What about a World Soccer HD-2 Channel ?

Add this specialized HD-2 FM Radio Channels :
http://www.hdradioalliance.com/hd2hd3_channel_examples
* HumDesi : South Asian Radio {WorldBand Media}
http://www.hdradioalliance.com/content_providers
* Mormon Channel LDS Church

* "Pride" Radio [LGBT]

Unique HD-2 Channel FM Radio Programming {Content} which Targets a Market Segment will SELL {Compel} FM HD-Radio to those Audio {Radio} Consumers.

I indeed have the large CC Radio SW. I tested it again more carefully with my other radios on three very weak far distant FM stations. The average result out of 5 was:
4.3 RP2100
4.0 GR8
3.7 Drake SW8
2.3 E100

The RP2100 is hot man, but the Grundig G8 is not far behind and way, way ahead of the equivalent E100.

Bob, yes we had a great time in Atlanta and my son and daughter in law looked after us like royalty. Our little eight month old grandson was great as well. The floods were scary and we nearly got caught one day, but my daughter in law got us safely away after the creeks came up. A great pity that ten died in the floods.

Only setback is that awful long flight of seventeen hours in cattle class, and Delta have stripped out all cabin service so all you can do is watch the entertainment.

The Kiwa loop is still sitting next to the shack waiting for me to attend to it = just lazy and much to do since I got back.

They need a primary revenue stream first! Radio cannot sustain shareholders. Radio stations should provide jobs for a few, entertainment and information for a few more. it should not be run as a profit center for a giant bozo corporation.

Why bother?

Here are 30,000+ radio streams. All free for the taking. Many non-commercial:

John said "making a dime" - that means, revenue from the HD-2/3 channels is 10 cents greater than the additional power bill, amortized costs of upgrade, Ibiquity royalties, etc. Are you sure?

Oh - and...

I don't know where that data came from, but 106.5 (KEZR) isn't transmitting HD.

Not really. Few consumers were willing to pay extra for the HD equipment but now HD radio is becoming more and more common as a standard feature on factory audio systems and even on low-end after-market systems. Once the installed base reaches critical mass then more stations will add HD.

I just got a replacement receiver for my SUV. It has HD built in (as well as iPod controls and Bluetooth built in) and there was no version without HD available, and was very inexpensive. There are still many receivers where HD is "optional" but more and more it's just being thrown in as a standard feature because the added cost is trivial (and because the equipment manufacturers are giving up on their original model of requiring a relatively expensive add-on kit because almost no one bought it because there was so little content available).

FM radio was around for more than 30 years before automobile manufactures switched from AM radios to AM/FM radios as the standard factory audio system (IIRC it was in the mid 1970's). It was actually pretty good because with such a limited installed base there was a lot less advertising on FM.

HD is the only digital radio system approved by the FCC. We'd be better off with DAB which has no licensing fees, but HD was approved by the FCC in 2002, during the dark years of GWB when the FCC was run as a business designed to reward corporate broadcasters, wireless carriers, and companies like iBiquity. The decision is unlikely to be reversed. Get used to it.

It's as easy to hate iBiquity as it is to hate Qualcomm, but that won't change things. You need to advise your customers to bring up HD as quickly as possible so they're ready for revenue service when the installed base reaches critical mass.

The same thing could've been said for the beginings of FM. No consumer interest.

However, as the programming content improved, people got more interested.

As the technology for transmitter/receiving FM got better, people got more interested.

CBS is running infomercials on some of their HD-3 streams....making not a lot of money...but some.

There are HD-2's in NY that are leased to foreign language broadcasters.

Many small constituancy groups would lease an HD-2 channel if they could.

Most stations ahve chosen NOT to have comemrcials on their HD2 stream.

I know a local group that would raise funds to lease an HD2 channel so they can put EWTN on it (This I don't understand!)

But there are people a few dimes off their HD2 channels.

That was last week. The FCC has changed a bit. In any event, it doesn't make any difference. The FCC can't make a purse out of a sow's ear.

> + 2 Couple with the Fact that the Broadcast

> jh - remember it's 'radio' so just listen and enjoy ~ RHF

From what you describe, HD-2 is nothing more than a glorified SCA for brokered programming. Unlike analog SCAs, it takes a big toll on the main channel. Also, I can tell you from decades of experience that SCA buyers come and go like crazy. Stations spend much of their time trying to get money out of the people renting the channel.

Still not convinced.

Muhammad (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him

Allah ( God ) sent all the Prophets and Messengers to call for the worship of Allah alone, and to bring people from darkness to light. The first of these Messengers was Nooh and the last of them was Muhammad (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him) as Allah said (interpretation of the meaning):
"We have sent thee inspiration, as We sent it to Noah and the Messengers after him: we sent inspiration to Abraham, Isma'il, Isaac, Jacob and the Tribes, to Jesus, Job, Jonah, Aaron, and solomon, and to David We gave the Psalms.
Of some apostles We have already told thee the story; of others We have not;- and to Moses Allah spoke direct;"-

The last of the Prophets and Messengers is Muhammad (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him), so there is no Prophet after him, as Allah said:
“Muhammad is not the father of any of your men, but he is the Messenger of Allah and the last (end) of the Prophets”
[al-Ahzaab 33:40]

Every Prophet was sent exclusively to his own people, but Allah sent His Messenger Muhammad (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him) to all of mankind as Allaah said (interpretation of the meaning):
“Allah revealed to His messenger the Qur’aan by which to guide people And We have not sent you (O Muhammad) except as a giver of glad tidings and a Warner to all mankind, but most of men know not”
[Saba’ 34:28]

Allah sent the Qur’an to His Messenger, to guide people and bring them forth from darkness to light by the will of their Lord. Allah says (interpretation of the meaning):
“(This is) a Book which We have revealed unto you (O Muhammad) in order that you might lead mankind out of darkness (of disbelief and polytheism) into light (of belief in the Oneness of Allah and Islâmic Monotheism) by their Lord’s Leave to the path of the All Mighty, the Owner of all praise”
[Ibraaheem 14:1]

Allah made Muhammad grow in a good manner, and Allah took care of him, so he was the the best of his people in physical wellbeing and in attitude, he was the most generous, the most patient, the most truthful, the most sincere and the most honest, so his people called him al-Ameen (the trustworthy) .

Then he was given an inclination towards solitude, so he used to spend many days and nights alone in the cave of Hiraa', worshiping and praying to his Lord. He hated idols, alcohol and promiscuous conduct, so he never paid any attention to them all his life

The people of the Jaahiliyyah used to have some good characteristics such as generosity, loyalty and courage, and they used to follow some teachings of the religion of Ibraaheem, such as venerating the Ka'bah and making Tawaaf around it, performing Hajj and 'Umrah, and offering sacrifices. But besides that they used to have some bad habits and traditions, such as fornication, drinking alcohol, consuming ribaa (usury or interest), killing their daughters, oppression and worshiping idols.

When shirk and corruption became so widespread, Allah sent Muhammad (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him), when he was forty years old, to call the people to worship Allah Alone and to give up idol-worship. Quraysh denounced him for that and said:
"Has he made the aalihah (gods) (all) into One Ilaah (God – Allah). Verily, this is a curious thing!"
[Saad 38:5 – interpretation of the meaning]

The Prophet stayed in Makkah for thirteen years, calling for the worship of Allah alone, in secret then openly, when Allah commanded him to proclaim the truth. So he called them in a gentle and kind manner, without fighting. He called his clan and closest relatives, then he warned his people and those around them, then he warned all the Arabs, then he warned all of mankind. Then Allaah said:
"Therefore proclaim openly (Allah's Message Islamic Monotheism) that which you are commanded, and turn away from Al Mushrikoon (polytheists, idolaters, and disbelievers)"
[al-Hijr 15:94]

A few people, rich people, nobles, the weak and poor, men and women, believed in the Messenger. All of them were persecuted for their faith. Some were tortured and some were killed. Some of them migrated to Abyssinia, fleeing from the persecution of Quraysh, and some of them were persecuted with the Messenger (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him), until Allah caused His religion to prevail.

When the Messenger reached the age of fifty and ten years of his mission had passed, his uncle Abu Taalib, who had protected him from the persecution of Quraysh, died. Then his wife Khadeejah, who had been his consolation, also died, and the persecution of his people intensified. They harrassed him and persecuted him with all kinds of torments, and he bore it with patience, seeking the reward of Allah. May the blessings and peace of Allah be upon him.

Then the Messenger commanded his companions to migrate to Madeenah,

The Messenger (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him) remained in Madeenah and Allah supported him with His help. The Muhaajiroon and Ansaar consolidated their ranks around him, and their hearts were devoted to him. The mushrikoon, Jews and hypocrites came together to oppose him; they slandered him and fabricated lies against him, and they declared war on him, but Allah commanded him to be patient, forbearing and tolerant. When their evildoing became too intense, Allah gave the Muslims permission to fight, and the aayah was revealed (interpretation of the meaning):

“Permission to fight (against disbelievers) is given to those (believers) who are fought against, because they have been wronged; and surely, Allah is Able to give them (believers) victory
[al-Hajj 22:39]

Then Allah enjoined the Muslims to fight those who fought against them:
“And fight in the way of Allah those who fight you, but transgress not the limits. Truly, Allah likes not the transgressors”
[al-Baqarah 2:190 – interpretation of the meaning]

When Allah perfected this religion and its basic principles had been established, Allah revealed to him in ‘Arafaah:
“This day, I have perfected your religion for you, completed My Favour upon you, and have chosen for you Islam as your religion
[al-Maa'idah 5:3 – interpretation of the meaning]

Allah honoured His Messenger with noble characteristics which were not combined in any other person, to the extent that his Lord praised him for these characteristics:
“And verily, you (O Muhammad) are on an exalted standard of character”
[al-Qalam 68:4 – interpretation of the meaning]

With these noble and praiseworthy characteristics, he (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him) was able to bring people together and soften their hearts, by Allah's leave:
“And by the Mercy of Allah, you dealt with them gently. And had you been severe and harsh hearted, they would have broken away from about you; so pass over (their faults), and ask (Allah's) forgiveness for them; and consult them in the affairs. Then when you have taken a decision, put your trust in Allah, certainly, Allah loves those who put their trust (in Him)”
[Aal ‘Imraan 3:159 – interpretation of the meaning]

Allah sent His Messenger Muhammad (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him) to all of mankind. He revealed to him the Qur’aan and commanded him to call people to Allah, as He says (interpretation of the meaning):
“O Prophet (Muhammad)! Verily, We have sent you as witness, and a bearer of glad tidings, and a warner,
And as one who invites to Allah [Islamic Monotheism, i.e. to worship none but Allah (Alone)] by His Leave, and as a lamp spreading light (through your instructions from the Qur’aan and the Sunnah the legal ways of the Prophet”
[al-Ahzaab 33:46]

All of mankind must believe in him and follow his sharee'ah in order to enter the Paradise of their Lord:
"and whosoever obeys Allah and His Messenger (Muhammad) will be admitted to Gardens under which rivers flow (in Paradise), to abide therein, and that will be the great success"
[al-Nisaa' 4:13 – interpretation of the meaning]

Allah praises those among the People of the Book who believe in the Messenger, and He gives them the glad tidings of a two-fold reward, as He says (interpretation of the meaning):
"Those to whom We gave the ure [i.e. the Tawraat (Torah) and the Injeel (Gospel)] before it, they believe in it (the Qur'aan).
And when it is recited to them, they say: 'We believe in it. Verily, it is the truth from our Lord. Indeed even before it we have been from those who submit themselves to Allaah in Islam as Muslims (like 'Abdullâh bin Salâm and Salmân Al Farisî).
These will be given their reward twice over, because they are patient, and repel evil with good, and spend (in charity) out of what We have provided them"
[al-Qasas 28:52-54]
The Prophet (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him) said: "There are three who will be given a two-fold reward: a man from among the People of the Book who believed in his Prophet then lived until the time of the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him) and believed in him and followed him – he will have two rewards…"

Whoever does not believe in the Messenger Muhammad (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him) is a kaafir, and the punishment of the kaafir is Hell, as Allah says (interpretation of the meaning):
"And whosoever does not believe in Allah and His Messenger (Muhammad), then verily, We have prepared for the disbelievers a blazing Fire [al-Fath 48:13]
The Prophet (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him) said: "By the One in Whose hand is the soul of Muhammad, no one among this ummah, Jew or Christian, hears of me then dies not believing in that with which I have been sent, but he will be one of the people of Hell."
(Narrated by Muslim, 154)
The Messenger (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him) was a human being who did not know anything except that which Allah taught him. He did not know the unseen and he had no power to benefit or harm himself or anyone else, as Allaah says (interpretation of the meaning):
"Say (O Muhammad): 'I possess no power over benefit or hurt to myself except as Allah wills. If I had the knowledge of the Ghayb (Unseen), I should have secured for myself an abundance of wealth, and no evil should have touched me. I am but a warner, and a bringer of glad tidings unto people who believe'"
[al-A'raaf 7:188]

The mission of the Messenger was to convey the message with which he was sent; guidance is in the hand of Allah:
"But if they turn away (O Muhammad, from the Islamic Monotheism, which you have brought to them). We have not sent you (O Muhammad) as a Haafiz (watcher, protector) over them (i.e. to take care of their deeds and to recompense them). Your duty is to convey (the Message)”

[al-Shoora 42:48 – interpretation of the meaning]
Islam is the religion of the fitrah (natural state of man) and justice, the religion which Allah has chosen for all of mankind. It includes basic principles and minor issues, etiquette, acts of worship and rulings on interaction with others. The ummah can never succeed unless it follows Islam and Allah will not accept any other religion from people, as Allah says (interpretation of the meaning):
“And whoever seeks a religion other than Islam, it will never be accepted of him, and in the Hereafter he will be one of the losers”
[Aal ‘Imraan 3:85]

Belief in God by Shaikh Shahidullah Faridi

It is mistakenly imagined by some that belief in a Supreme Being as the Creator and Controller of the universe is a mere emotional aspiration, a superstition of ancient times, irrational and illogical, and exploded by modern science. It is believed that scientists (physicists, biologists and others) have erected some theory which both refutes and replaces the traditional belief in God. Such ideas have only a very superficial grounding, and are the result of ignorance or an indifference to both the fundamentals of religious faith and the scope of the physical sciences. It is a significant fact in the history of world thought that very few people have ever made it their business to refute the existence of God. The views of the universe which are considered to be anti-religious are almost all agnostic, not atheistic, that is to say, they attempt to ignore the existence of God instead of denying it. This is true of certain views of modern science as well as of the ancient non-religious theories. The universe in which we live comprises an evident system of causes and effects, of phenomena and their results, and it is possible to discuss them indefinitely and construct theories about them, giving a superficial appearance of completeness. This is done, however, only at the expense of ignoring fundamentals or claiming that they cannot be known. If one were to search for a convincing statement based on firm principles that the existence of a Supreme Being is impossible, one would not be able to find it.
The reason for this state of affairs is that belief in God is at once instinctive, rational, evidential and intuitional, and it is only by deliberately neglecting to consider it that the non-religious attitude is maintained. It is instinctive in that man has an innate feeling of his own inadequacy and helplessness, which accompanies him from the cradle to the grave, a feeling accompanied by the complementary desire to seek refuge and support with a being who controls all those forces before which he feels himself inadequate. We put this feeling forward as instinctive, although it will immediately be perceived that it is also evidential. The weakness of man before all the uncountable influences over which he has no control is a fact so obvious as to require no discussion.

What is less well grasped by some who have claims to intelligence is that belief in God is fully supported by reason and logic, the principles on which all human intelligence stands. For instance, it is a basic requirement of reason that an effect cannot exist without a cause. However hard we press our mental faculties, we cannot conceive rationally of a causeless effect, and if we wish to postulate one we can only do so by temporarily putting our reason on the shelf. Reason leads us to the conclusion that just as the elements which compose the universe are effects of certain causes, the universe itself must be the effect of a cause, a cause which is itself mightier than and outside the universe. Non-religious thinkers have to ignore the origin of the universe and postulate something existing in the beginning without any known cause. This postulate is essentially non-rational and therefore unscientific, but it is a necessity for those thinkers who have unconsciously or deliberately decided not to consider fundamentals. Of these there are even some who openly proclaim their refusal to discuss or admit any metaphysical concept. This kind of attitude, however, can only be upheld by abandoning reason. Reason itself guides us inexorably to the conclusion that there is an ultimate cause, the Cause of causes, beyond this universe of time, space and change; in fact, a Supreme Being.

Another of the basic demands of reason is that diversity cannot exist without a fundamental unity. Whenever the human mind is confronted with diversity, it immediately sets to work to synthesise it into unities, then to synthesise these unities into higher unities and so on until it can go no further. The ultimate result of a rational consideration of diversity is to arrive at a unity of unities, a Supreme Unity, the producer of all diversities, but itself essentially One. Whichever fundamental of reason we select, if we follow its path we are led inevitably to the same goal - belief in God, the Supreme Being.

Besides the conclusion arrived at by purely rational processes, man is led to the belief in God by observation and experience. One of the principal reasons for man’s refusal to recognize the existence of God is the intellectual arrogance produced by his appreciation of his own powers of analysis and synthesis, of harnessing physical forces by his ingenuity, and of constructing complex machines to do his work for him. But pride is caused by concentrating too much attention on one’s own virtues and blinding oneself to one’s defects. What are the best of man’s mechanical inventions but a poor and crude imitation of what already exists in an infinitely finer form in nature? By copying in an elementary fashion some of the functions of the human eye, he has been able to evolve the camera; but what comparison has this machine, made out of lifeless materials, to the living stuff of the eye, and to the refinement, brightness, clarity, flexibility and stability of its vision, its immediate connection with the mind which sifts and appreciates all it sees, all without a complicated system and controls, and directly under the command of the human will? Take any organ of the body and study it - the heart, the brain - and it will immediately be obvious that it is quite outside the scope of man’s ability to conceive and fashion such an instrument. The petty imitations of man are attributed to his great cunning, artistry and intelligence. Is it then reasonable, logical or scientific to attribute the infinitely finer and more perfect instruments of nature to such vague and blind energies called by names such as the ‘life force', or 'matter in evolution', and leave them undescribed and unexplained? If logic has any validity (and if it has not we had better stop thinking altogether and become animals), the intelligence which conceived and wrought myriads of such delicate and astonishing devices must be infinitely superior to the human intelligence (even the human intelligence is one of its products), and have control of all the materials and workings of the universe. Such an intelligence can only be possessed by a Supreme Being, the Creator, Fashioner and Sustainer of all things.

If we ponder our own place in the world, we find that we (as well as all other beings) are kept in being by a most intimate combination of forces and conditions, which is so delicate that even a small dislocation would cause our total destruction. We live, so to speak, continually on the brink of annihilation, and yet are enabled to carry on our complex existences in comparative immunity. We cannot live, for instance, without daily rest; both the human body and the human mind are constructed to need it. This fact is not in itself surprising, but what is surprising is that the solar system collaborates with us in our human frailty and provides us with a day and a night exactly suited to our needs. Man cannot claim to have compelled or persuaded the solar system to do so; nor can the solar system claim to have modelled human physical and mental energy to conform to its own movements. Both man and the solar system are evidently linked in a total organisation in which man is the beneficiary; the organiser of these inexplicable concordances can only be a Supreme Controller of the universe and mankind. Sweet water is a necessary condition of human existence; it is equally necessary for those plants which produce man's staple foods, which themselves depend on each other. If sea water were to invade our rivers and wells or rain down from the sky, is there any doubt that we should all die of hunger and thirst in a few days and the whole world become an empty desert? Yet sea water is only held back by an invisible barrier over which we have no control, and the sun and the clouds co-operate in order to desalinate our water for us and so give us life. This linkage of interdependence and concurrence could be extended indefinitely by taking examples from the physical world, and to describe it as 'fortuitous' is only begging the question; moreover it is a contradiction in terms. Fortuity is the name for something which does not come within any known system or regulation, an apparently meaningless and haphazard occurrence. To call a system which is a balanced and cohesive organization fortuitous is obviously self-contradictory and fallacious. A 'fortuitous system' is, simply, an absurdity. If we observe carefully we can see that the whole of the universe is interdependent and interlinked and therefore not fortuitous but planned. Belief in God means, precisely, belief in a Planner of the universe.

A basic element in human consciousness - a suprarational element - is a sense of value and purpose in respect to life. Even the worst of men is prevented from becoming completely bestial by this feeling, and in the best of them it dominates their whole existence. The senses of good and evil, right and wrong, beauty and ugliness, fitness and unfitness, truth and falsehood are such that however attacked by the missiles of constructive analysis, they remain intact within their intuitional fortress. In all ages and conditions, man has not been able to divest himself of the idea that behind its external effect, every action possesses a quality by which it may be judged and graded in the scale of final values. In addition to the consciousness of the existence of these values, there is the feeling that it is the purpose of man's life to attain those qualities which reflect the highest of them, that not only are they excellent in themselves and worthy of being acquired, but that they must be acquired, and that he has been created to acquire them. The natural sense of qualitative purpose, if allowed to develop freely without the cramps of agnostic prejudice, leads him to the conception of an absolute good and an absolute truth as the ultimate standard of human existence, and from there (for a quality cannot exist except in a being who is qualified by it) to a being who is the possessor and author of these qualities, the Supreme Purposer.

The decisive vindication of the existence of God is evidential. At various junctures in world history and in widely distant places, certain men have arisen and proclaimed that they have been inspired by God to give His message to mankind. These men were not mad; we have historical records of several of them, including all or part of the message they insisted that they were called to deliver, and it is obvious that they were men who were intellectually and morally highly impressive. They did not come all at once so that we could attribute them to a sort of historical fashion. They came spaced throughout history usually at a time of great moral degeneration. If we examine their message, we find that apart from differences of expression, attributable to the milieu in which they lived, they not only bear remarkable similarities but are basically identical. They have stated that God had conversed with them in some inspirational manner, and had ordered them to proclaim His Existence as the Creator, Maintainer, Controller and eventual Destroyer of the world, to describe His Mercy and Justice, and to warn mankind that it is only by remembering and worshipping Him and following the moral and practical principles that He has laid down for them that they can achieve success and happiness here and hereafter.

The last of these prophets was Muhammad of Mecca, who stated that there would be no prophet after him, and it is a demonstrable historical fact that no-one has been able to establish a claim to prophethood since. Now those who discuss or refuse to discuss the existence of God almost invariably rely on rational or anti-rational arguments and rarely, if ever, consider the evidential factor. The two basic elements in human knowledge are, firstly, our own observations and conclusions, and secondly, the evidence of others. Among the branches of knowledge the whole of history, for example, and most of the average man's acquaintance with science, are only known from the evidence of others, unless he himself is a specialist in the subject.

When specialists in a certain branch of knowledge continuously assert that a certain thing is a fact, it becomes a necessity for the rest of mankind, who are unable to acquire this knowledge directly, to accept it as such. In the field of direct inspiration from God, and knowledge of His qualities and works, we have the repeated evidence of people in history who have affirmed their apprehension of Him and that they have been charged with conveying His message; not only that, the realities of the divine and spiritual realism as described by these prophets have in various degrees been corroborated and confirmed by the spiritual experiences of an uncounted number of their followers right up to the present day. These corroborators have been the saints and mystics of their various communities. This continuous and widespread evidence of the existence of God, the central and original evidence of prophets, and the derivative and confirmatory evidence of their followers, all based on modes of direct and intuitional perception of His Being, cannot with any reasonability be denied or ignored. To deny or ignore them is patently illogical and unscientific, and against the basic principles of the acquirement and dissemination of human knowledge. In addition to being instinctive, intuitional, and logical, belief in God has irrefutable evidence to prove its verity.

The writer (1915-1978) was an English convert to Islam who became a Shaykh of the Tariqa Chishtiyya, living a life of simplicity in Karachi, Pakistan, where his holiness gained him the love and devotion of thousands of Muslims from all walks of life. May Allah show him His mercy, and grant him light in his grave. Amin.

They already know that there is currently NO benefit to spending six figures per station to ruin the quality of their current signal. I couldn't talk them into it now if I wanted to.

In the unlikely event that HD every reaches "critical mass", HD could be implemented overnight (well, in a week anyway). Until then, why bother?
Let the big boys throw their money in the street now.

Most of the hams I know who are looking for great audio are heading in the direction of Ten-tec or Flex.

The Ten-tec Omni VII is general coverage, and I've heard very favorable things about it's performance. The Orions have GC on the second receiver though it's admittedly not as good as the primary rx. The Flex radios are also GC.

An advantage Ten-tec has over Icom is they seem to be better about supporting discontinued models. They'll also try to talk an owner through diagnosing and fixing a radio on the phone.

I've read less about the Flex service as they're a newer company with a smaller customer base. Frankly, while I've got plenty of computers scattered about the house, I'm not excited about a radio that depends on a computer to run.

Ten-tec and Flex are both made in the USA.

I'm researching HF rigs now, and at the moment, I'm leaning to the Omni VII or possibly a Harris RF-5000 Falcon.

I've worked with both Ten-Tec and Icom service. Icom is fairly institutional. They're good. But they're pretty rigid. Ten-Tec is a lot more personable. And, you're right, they'll fix a rig over the phone, if you'd like. I like that.

When they've had a rig of mine, it's always come back well packed, cleaned, and cost effectively serviced, but serviced right.

Icom, one time, required a second trip back to Bellevue to address an issue that they'd missed. They did pick up the extra shipping, and they did a nice job of the service issues. Packed well, but not cleaned and dressed as well as Icom.

Costs are about the same.

Of the two, I'd make Ten-Tec a preference in my next purchase.

Ford is SUPPOSED to be an iBiquity partner. Our brand new 2009 Ford Flex has optional Sirius, no HD. And again, this is a brand new car.

In the past year, I have purchased two new Fords, neither of which came with an "HD Radio". Both have Sirius, CD changer, and "Sync". I let the Sirius lapse in both (who cares?), and HD Radio would never be listened to, since there isn't a single station I listen to that is doing.

Maybe Ford woke up.

Always. I blame HAARP, not the lithosphere. I listen to 720, 740, 760,

Setting up Rush Limbaugh?
If you were a Democrat that wanted to establish a world wide communist empire, and it drove you crazy that black athletes, in the national football league, were making millions of dollars, and your whole political campaign was fueled by the support of black citizens, how would you go about taking away the “bling bling” of NFL superstars without hurting their feelings?

Is it just too convenient that Mr. Soros happens to be on the scene, and a mysterious invitation to bid on the team occurs? Just because you are black, does that mean that you support black citizens? Ask the black slave traders in Africa that sold their community out?

So the Rev Wind Mistaken comes on the scene, and Congresswoman Sheila Jackson gets in on the action, which I look forward to discussing later (I have enough for now), and they all start screaming about how Rush Limbaugh doe not unify people, and should not be in the NFL.

So our highly educated con artist, Shiela Jackson Lee, is trying to tell us that American politics is meant to unify people? Well, if that was true, why is there voting? Why is there a voting process at all if we are supposed to just get along, and not say anything that might offend somebody?

That insults my intelligence Shiela Jackson Lee, that might be fine for your congressional district where almost 70 percent of your voters are high school drop outs, but not me? So how do you get the bling bling of a NFL superstar without making it obvious?

I know, lets set Rush Limbaugh up to buy a football team, and then make it obvious that he will get treated unfairly, and make his listeners mad enough to boycott the sport? We will just whisper in Rush Limbaugh's ear, that this was all just about the national players association negotiations coming up?

We know that Rush will remind people on a constant basis how he was treated, and after a year or two, the NFL will not be able to pay these Black Negro athletes their high salaries, and we can start chopping them down? Guess who will get the blame, Rush Limbaugh, or the Democrats or puppet masters that set this up?

It's kind of clever, if you look at it like that? They think he is a lovable fuzz ball, and will not take on the lies spread about him, he's rich, the slander really won't hurt him, but allowing the slander to exist will allow all those black drop outs out there to believe the hype, and not ever want to listen to Rush Limbaugh in the future, and censor him, they won't have to lift a finger, all they have to do is count on Rush being lazy?

That's why they don't want people listening to Rush Limbaugh, because I guarantee you, after six months, if you listen to National Public Rip Off Radio, you will see exactly what the agenda is? That's why they jump at the chance to remind the black folk out there not to listen to him? He's rich, why is he going to spend his personal time suing people?

Well, here's your chance Rush, they gave you the head of the "baptist of poverty" on a silver platter, after an exotic dance? By denying you the opportunity to buy the team, you have what, damages? Mr. Trump should hire Mr. Soros, he if he is that smart, or should he be wary of Mr. Soros because he is that devious?

So what could happen now? If Rush does not sue, I believe that millions of young, smart, Black Negroes will not hear the greatest conservative commentator of all time, who can explain the game just like McMadden did, and that commentator was the only reason I watched football, he made it interesting, he made it more than just passing a ball up and down the field?

This is almost as devious as the Michael Savage connection, did Britain really ban the guy from going into Britain, or is he really a liberal buddy of theirs and they want to prop him up with ratings? Is it a big deal to get banned from Britain, if they banned rock stars from having a doobie, or whatever, which is a minor crime, from being banned, are we supposed to wonder why it is important that the issue is about him?

Are liberals in Britain are testing their policies of taking away the freedoms of their citizens, asking Michael Savage how to get them done in America, is America next, under the progressive planned "improvements" or "change"? Why else would you hide an alleged “banned in Britain policy” without explanation? Liberals tell on themselves, sometimes by not saying anything?

An example of a “change” that liberals want, but conservatives do not, Shiela, ask yourself if it is an improvement that if you loose your job, and you can't get another one that pays the same, and you just happen to have an older house, you won't be able to sell the house until improvements are made that may cost thousands of dollars, after you just tried to weather a famine of unemployment? This is just one example of several planned outrageous plans of the liberals designed to unify us? Just shut up Rush?

They are counting on Rush Limbaugh not to sue, and to shrug this off as political maneuvering related to player salary negotiations, when it is meant to get the NFL players out of the way, because they will not be allowed to keep their salaries under this new "change" for America?

Think Rev Wind Mistaken is not going to take to the streets, and claim that everyone should be able to get season tickets to a stadium, even if they don't work? One more thing, since this author, and creator of this website, is a student of the Center for Advanced Conservative Studies, when will I get my diploma?

Should I get my diploma after receiving the amount of compensation from conservative writing that equals one million dollars? What do you think Rush? Should I ask MR. Fox News Talking Points (which this website does not copy)? Are you ready to go super sonic now? All right, afterburner, engage.....

Being that this is the most powerful keyboard in the world, that may work one day for Donald Trump, or Glenn Beck, or Rush Limbaugh, or for you the audience, you have to ask yourself a question, is revving wind a fart, and if you do that, ....

do you feel lucky?

Setting up Rush Limbaugh?
If you were a Democrat that wanted to establish a world wide communist empire, and it drove you crazy that black athletes, in the national football league, were making millions of dollars, and your whole political campaign was fueled by the support of black citizens, how would you go about taking away the “bling bling” of NFL superstars without hurting their feelings?

Is it just too convenient that Mr. Soros happens to be on the scene, and a mysterious invitation to bid on the team occurs? Just because you are black, does that mean that you support black citizens? Ask the black slave traders in Africa that sold their community out?

So the Rev Wind Mistaken comes on the scene, and Congresswoman Sheila Jackson gets in on the action, which I look forward to discussing later (I have enough for now), and they all start screaming about how Rush Limbaugh doe not unify people, and should not be in the NFL.

So our highly educated con artist, Shiela Jackson Lee, is trying to tell us that American politics is meant to unify people? Well, if that was true, why is there voting? Why is there a voting process at all if we are supposed to just get along, and not say anything that might offend somebody?

That insults my intelligence Shiela Jackson Lee, that might be fine for your congressional district where almost 70 percent of your voters are high school drop outs, but not me? So how do you get the bling bling of a NFL superstar without making it obvious?

I know, lets set Rush Limbaugh up to buy a football team, and then make it obvious that he will get treated unfairly, and make his listeners mad enough to boycott the sport? We will just whisper in Rush Limbaugh's ear, that this was all just about the national players association negotiations coming up?

We know that Rush will remind people on a constant basis how he was treated, and after a year or two, the NFL will not be able to pay these Black Negro athletes their high salaries, and we can start chopping them down? Guess who will get the blame, Rush Limbaugh, or the Democrats or puppet masters that set this up?

It's kind of clever, if you look at it like that? They think he is a lovable fuzz ball, and will not take on the lies spread about him, he's rich, the slander really won't hurt him, but allowing the slander to exist will allow all those black drop outs out there to believe the hype, and not ever want to listen to Rush Limbaugh in the future, and censor him, they won't have to lift a finger, all they have to do is count on Rush being lazy?

That's why they don't want people listening to Rush Limbaugh, because I guarantee you, after six months, if you listen to National Public Rip Off Radio, you will see exactly what the agenda is? That's why they jump at the chance to remind the black folk out there not to listen to him? He's rich, why is he going to spend his personal time suing people?

Well, here's your chance Rush, they gave you the head of the "baptist of poverty" on a silver platter, after an exotic dance? By denying you the opportunity to buy the team, you have what, damages? Mr. Trump should hire Mr. Soros, he if he is that smart, or should he be wary of Mr. Soros because he is that devious?

So what could happen now? If Rush does not sue, I believe that millions of young, smart, Black Negroes will not hear the greatest conservative commentator of all time, who can explain the game just like McMadden did, and that commentator was the only reason I watched football, he made it interesting, he made it more than just passing a ball up and down the field?

This is almost as devious as the Michael Savage connection, did Britain really ban the guy from going into Britain, or is he really a liberal buddy of theirs and they want to prop him up with ratings? Is it a big deal to get banned from Britain, if they banned rock stars from having a doobie, or whatever, which is a minor crime, from being banned, are we supposed to wonder why it is important that the issue is about him?

Are liberals in Britain are testing their policies of taking away the freedoms of their citizens, asking Michael Savage how to get them done in America, is America next, under the progressive planned "improvements" or "change"? Why else would you hide an alleged “banned in Britain policy” without explanation? Liberals tell on themselves, sometimes by not saying anything?

An example of a “change” that liberals want, but conservatives do not, Shiela, ask yourself if it is an improvement that if you loose your job, and you can't get another one that pays the same, and you just happen to have an older house, you won't be able to sell the house until improvements are made that may cost thousands of dollars, after you just tried to weather a famine of unemployment? This is just one example of several planned outrageous plans of the liberals designed to unify us? Just shut up Rush?

They are counting on Rush Limbaugh not to sue, and to shrug this off as political maneuvering related to player salary negotiations, when it is meant to get the NFL players out of the way, because they will not be allowed to keep their salaries under this new "change" for America?

Think Rev Wind Mistaken is not going to take to the streets, and claim that everyone should be able to get season tickets to a stadium, even if they don't work? One more thing, since this author, and creator of this website, is a student of the Center for Advanced Conservative Studies, when will I get my diploma?

Should I get my diploma after receiving the amount of compensation from conservative writing that equals one million dollars? What do you think Rush? Should I ask MR. Fox News Talking Points (which this website does not copy)? Are you ready to go super sonic now? All right, afterburner, engage.....

Being that this is the most powerful keyboard in the world, that may work one day for Donald Trump, or Glenn Beck, or Rush Limbaugh, or for you the audience, you have to ask yourself a question, is revving wind a fart, and if you do that, ....

do you feel lucky?

Well do ya mmm mmm mmmm?

Come back and talk to us about this after Rush goes to jail for drug trafficing, and spens a few years behind bars.

Just like he said drug addicts should do.

After all we only expect him to live up to the words he insisted on applying to drug addicts.

Setting up Rush Limbaugh? Steal their bling, over time of course?

(Revised, 10/15/2009, rushed out original with typographical errors, added to conclusion)

From:

http://www.radiotalkingpoints.com/articles/2009_radiotalkingpoints_article_0042_Oct_15_SettingUpRush.html

If you were a Democrat that wanted to establish a world wide communist empire, and it drove you crazy that black athletes, in the national football league, were making millions of dollars, and your whole political campaign was fueled by the support of black citizens, how would you go about taking away the “bling bling” of NFL superstars without hurting their feelings?

sure there is...lots of stations see the benefits. someone else posted the ways to make money off an hd2 or 3.

My stations swore off the SCA business years ago. It makes no difference whether you're talking real SCA or HD-2, you still have to deal with the slimeballs who lease the channels.

Here's a little tidbit for you. With no HD-2, the main channel gets 96Kbps. Even with the archaic iBiquity codec, that's acceptable. With an HD-2 channel, each gets 48Kbps. That's starting to get a little rough. With an HD-3, each channel gets 32Kbps. That's pretty dreadful.

We're not interested in our main channel sounding like garbage, thanks all the same. Oh yeah, the analog channel will still sound OK...but we already have that.

Sorry...not interested.

"We Might Want to Keep an Eye on ION"

"If the commission embraces the notion that secondary digital streams really do constitute separate licenses that can be separately assigned, one could easily argue that radio stations that have opted to transmit digital streams (i.e., 'HD Radio') should also be permitted to sell those streams as separately licensed stations... For one, the number of radio stations could theoretically double or triple overnight. This might not have the cataclysmic effect of, say, the injection of nearly 700 new FM allotments through the notorious Docket No. 80-90 a quarter century ago, but you never know. At a minimum, if the law of supply and demand were to hold true, the overnight doubling/tripling of stations would likely depress each station's value. And such a rapid increase in the number of stations would logically lead to a similarly rapid increase in competition for audiences and revenues. Are we all ready for that?"

http://www.rwonline.com/article.aspx?articleId=76922&mnu_id=14

You mean like this? iBiquity's business-model is based on replacing/destroying community radio stations by replacing their signals with the HDs/HD3 signals of lthe larger broadcasters who are all iBiquity investors. I alerted Paragon Media Strategies to this, and they wanted to know who I was - they are huge iBiquity shills. My blog has alerted most of the Government agencies, including the DOJ, Congress, the FCC, US Courts, and many others. You have no clue whom you are dealing with, here.

Do you work for iBiquity, the NAB, or the HD Radio Alliance? You sound just as foolish as Bob "The Scammer Booble" Struble. Struble is nothing but a glorified con-artist.

There are virtually no radios in listeners' hands, after five years - no radios, no listeners, no revenue. IBOC is a malignant tumor eating away at stations' revenues.

SCA = Subsidiary Communications Authorization
http://www.fcc.gov/mb/audio/subcarriers/http://www.radiosca.com/sca-radio.html
http://www.blackcatsystems.com/radio/sca.html

Every HD-Radio is Second Audio Channel [HD-2]
'capable' for each and every FM HD-Radio Station
-and- Each and Every FM HD-Radio Station is a 'potential' Second Audio Channel [HD-2] Broadcaster.
-plus- Each and Every Second Audio Channel [HD-2] is a potential Second Income Stream for FM HD-Radio Stations.

=IF= SCA was a good idea : Then HD-2 is a Better Idea.

I have a 1 KW days/0.5 KW nights directional on 1220 about a mile away.
It makes single conversion AM radios whistle on other MW stations, but it's too wimpy to affect any the Ten Tec or the ICOM or the Drake. It might screw with the HF-150, which has a naked front-end.

I'm in the middle of a bedroom community with underground utilities.
The houses are all stucco with wire lath and foil faced insulation. It is usually very quiet here.

No, including HD capability as standard equipment is starting with higher end vehicle brands, and will eventually filter down.

For example, Jaguar, Volvo and Mercedes now include HD radio on all of its models. In 2011 Audi will be including HD as standard on most, if not all, U.S. models. For BMW, only the 5 series and the X3 have HD as an option, it's standard on all other models (kind of strange that the lower cost 3 series, and higher cost 7 series gets it as standard, but the mid-range 5 series does not).

It's very similar to how the adoption of FM occurred back in the 20th century. There was little content so there was no reason for automakers to add the extra expense of an FM capable radio. When there was a small, but sufficient amount of content you started seeing after-market radios with FM, and eventually it became standard equipment. The experts predict that by 2013, HD radio will be standard equipment on virtually all vehicles sold in the U.S. (which incidentally is the same year other analyst predict DAB will be standard on vehicles sold in Europe).

As long as adding HD broadcast capability to a radio station can be done quickly then there's no real rush for you to convince the station management to add it. You mentioned "six figures" to add HD capability. That's a pretty wide range. Is it $100K or is it $999,999? $100K might be a bargain considering the additional revenue potential. Plus, the purchasers of the vehicles that now include HD as standard equipment are exactly the people that many advertisers want to reach (well maybe not the type of advertisers you get on KSFO like Cash4Gold).

You're a purist, you care about the sound quality of analog FM, and how HD affects that quality, but few consumers are sophisticated enough to care, and since most radio is listened to in a vehicle with relatively low quality audio equipment the degredation of analog that HD causes is less of a problem than you believe.

The biggest reason to fight HD radio is that if it becomes successful then we'll be unlikely to see a better digital radio standard adopted in the U.S.. We'll end up, as often happens, with an inferior system to the rest of the world.

Well, my previous post stands - I'm sure they're not making any money when the true costs of HD are added up. But unlike web radio, HD doesn't work that far. So KEZR is the only one I can't hear for sure.

in the scheme of things...hd radio is very inexpensive most stations hav echosen not to air any commericals...so as to be able to "sell it" to the public as commercial free.

There's 2 completely different cost models there for the broadcaster. An SCA generator can be had for less than $1500. That can be recuperated in one month in a large market. But it doesn't matter. Even then, until there's something compelling to listen to it won't happen. I think about radioparadise and fatmusicradio on the web and how fine their presentation and music mixes are, yet every time I try an HD-2 channel for a while it's just boring. Maybe some broadcaster ought to try to hook up with some of the better webcasters. The programming is already there, and I wouldn't think they'd charge too much to put it on the radio.

That would be a good model. The broadcasters need to understand that the incremental cost of adding HD is quite small, they can't expect that HD is going to provide revenue in proportion to the number of listeners, at least not yet. We're four years away from HD becoming a standard feature on all new car radios, and even then it'll be years before most cars on the road have HD receivers.

Add an HD signal generator and an exciter that combines HD Radio and analog FM and then concentrate on the more difficult task of actual content, but as you stated hooking up with webcasters would be good model. John says it would cost "six figures" to add HD, and I wonder where that number came from. Is there some big up-front payment you have to make to iBiquity, because the equipment certainly doesn't cost anything close to $100K?

You have the potential to add listeners with different formats on HD (or not lose listeners when you change format by moving the old format to HD). I.e. I'd love an oldies station, but the Bay Area market can't support a regular FM oldies station the way other markets can, so if you want that content you have to subscribe to satellite radio at rather ridiculous prices.

Time for the broadcasters to realize that HD is here, and that fighting it is rather hopeless. Closing your eyes and pretending it doesn't exist, and hoping for a better digital radio standard to emerge is not productive.

Now when will the SAP actually have some content on my TV?

Yeah, actually, it does. The digital system is virtually a separate system, requiring separate transmitters and towers.

Followed by the ongoing licensing fee to iBiquity for the right to use the encoding algorithms, which are proprietary.

No, actually it doesn't. Or at least it usually doesn't require a new transmitter.

As long as the existing transmitter has an extra 10% of power headroom to overcome combiner losses, you can do high-level combining and you do not need a new transmitter (or tower).

If you have to buy a new transmitter then of course the cost goes way up but you still don't need a new tower.

They are not separate systems, either virtually or in reality. No stations at all would be broadcasting HD if it required separate transmitters and towers.

John can answer the question as to how many stations have transmitters with that 10% of headroom, but apparently many do.

Obviously, you have never done an HD conversion. It amounts to basically building a new transmitter plant from scratch. And that's just the transmitter end. Oh, and don't forget the ongoing iBiquity fees based upon the station's gross revenues, with additional royalties on each HD-X channel.

There's no need for a separate tower. Depending on the linearity and headroom of the transmitter plant you could conceivably get by with just a new exciter and new monitor.

That assumes the existing array is broadband enough. That's an issue in directionals and some older omni's. Some DA's can be broadbanded to accomodate the two channel extra bandwidth. Some...not so much. Even broadbanding an existing array can run into money. At the station in Iowa, we tried for the entire time I was there to broadband the antenna so we had fewer issues at night some of which were severe, presenting highly irregular loads to the transmitters. There were audio artifacts that became quite objectionable. Spent bags of money on it. And never did get it where we wanted it to be.

Eventually, everything was replaced with newly redesigned and engineered hardware. Including north tower which was the center of our broadbanding problems.

And that was a single channel's bandwidth. For IBOC, they'd have to tear out everything from the program line terminal to the toplights.

The question is IF the existing transmitter has that kind of headroom. Often, especially in the case of some lower margin stations, this is not the case. Even in the cases of big markets, new hardware is often installed. WGN put in new transmitters for the implementation of IBOC.

There certainly is a fee to be paid to iBiquity, and it is based on the number of HD channels the station uses, plus a portion of the station's gross revenue.

Adding IBOC to a station (and every station is different) amounts to a helluva lot more than "adding an HD signal generator". If that were all it was, I wouldn't even care about it. At lower powers, stations typically buy new transmitters. At higher power levels, IBOC transmitters are obtained, and combined at high level with the analog transmitters. In this process, 90% of the IBOC power is burned off as heat; 10% of the analog power is burned off. The bottom line is that thousands of watts are thrown away as heat, 24/7. Really green, eh?

Sometimes, there isn't enough room and additional transmitter space must be rented to house the additional IBOC transmitter, the rack of gear, the combiner and the reject load. Sometimes, there is not enough power available in the building and the entire building's electrical system must me revamped.

And...with HD, there comes considerable upgrades to the program-producing facilities, new digital STLs, and for HD-X, additional program control facilities. Yes, the current players put a PC jukebox in a closet and forget about it, but remember I work for a family that takes serving its listeners seriously.

That is just scratching the surface.

What good does it do to move the listeners to HD-X channels? No commercials = no revenue! All you have done is cannibalize your bread and butter source.

I have told the owners of my three stations that converting their three stations will come to about a half-million dollars (not counting iBiquity's cut), but including site modifications and equipment, STL replacements, and studio upgrades. Tell me...how do I sell that kind of capital investment with no clear ROI path in this economy? The last time we talked, they saw no downside to spending that money on program improvements instead.

Where do you think the IBOC signal comes from? It's called a "transmitter". And for your information, a low-power transmitter running in class A (necessary for IBOC) costs about as much as a much larger class C transmitter. Remember, 90% of the IBOC power is thrown away, so you need an IBOC transmitter capable of ten times the power you intend to use.

> If you have to buy a new transmitter then of course the cost goes way up

Most people don't have spare IBOC transmitter laying around.

You have no idea, do you? Conglomerates piss away money all the time.
Millions of dollars have been spent just in the Bay Area to install IBOC at the chain stations. The independents can't afford it, and that's part of the game plan by the conglomerates.

> John can answer the question as to how many stations have transmitters

And John will answer that such headroom is a very minor consideration.
The major cost is the IBOC transmitter, the combiner and reject load, and the iBiquity gear. Don't forget the annual checks to iBiquity.

That's a misconception. All pre-IBOC analog transmitters are non-linear by design for efficiency reasons. They cannot pass an IBOC digital signal, which consists of multiple carriers. A specially-designed linear transmitter must be used.

I can see from reading these threads that many people are under the impression that IBOC is nothing more than some sort of subcarrier superimposed on the main channel. Unless the station is using a combo analog/IBOC transmitter, the outputs of both analog and IBOC transmitter must be combined by a device that discards 90% of the IBOC signal and 10% of the analog signal. All of that stuff costs money, as does the increased air conditioning requirement, and power (particularly that which is burned off as heat). In many installations (and I've seen dozens...I wonder how many of our pontificators have even seen one), the IBOC and analog transmitter sit side by side...and they're about the same physical size.

My point is, adding IBOC to a station is far more complex and costly than putting some 4-unit device in the rack and hooking it up. A "new exciter" doesn't do it.

Oh, and don't forget the studio, the new digital STL, monitoring equipment, and the fact that HD equipment currently in the field is notoriously unreliable. Fortunately, most stations don't care that much because their three HD listeners don't phone in to complain.

You know what's really interesting about that whole HD Listener thing,...is that people see this as an opportunity for a station to garner new revenues by attracting new listeners.

First, there is only a 100 share in any market. New listeners are not printed up like $100 bills in Washington. They have to be taken from some pre-existing program source. Any new programming outlet steals it's listeners from the existing 100 share. So, literally, stations are hoping to steal their own listeners to put them on the HD streams.

What's that, you say? They stay in the family? Really? Well, while a listener shift from the baseband channel to the HD2 stream DOES keep that listener within the company, it takes that listener from the programs of high advertising rates, and puts them on the programs of LOW advertising rates. Enough listeners make that shift, and the baseband channel's advertising rates fall. Meanwhile the HD stream's rates are abysmally low mostly because there is virtually no listenership. Most advertising on HD at the moment is value added to the baseband's sales packages. That which isn't, is low rated. And the advertising revenues per spot are dramatically less than the revenues per spot on the baseband.

So, what HD is really doing is robbing the analog channels of it's revenues while putting the ratings points on HD streams that can't begin to replace the lost revenue from the baseband.

How the hell the bean counters at these stations let that go is beyond me. Hell, when I was at CBS, we reused the toner in the copy machine, for cryin' out loud. Drop $100,000 + on HD and then let it siphon off the ad rates?

C'mon.

Yet there is some programming where the jukebox in a closet suits the listeners just fine, and it has nothing to do with treating listeners seriously or not.

No one ever said that you aren't allowed to sell advertising on the HD-X channels. Granted, until the installed base of HD receivers is much greater it will be a hard sell.

It depends on how much of those costs are real. You don't necessarily need any studio upgrades if you're doing "jukebox in a closet." You've got to look at the long term and the big picture. At least ensure that new equipment that's purchased is "HD ready" so when HD reaches critical mass in a few years the time and money to bring it up will be minimal.

That's a time honored way of doing fees. BMI and ASCAP fees are based on a percentage of gross, and before divestiture, the Bell companies even based business phone rates on gross revenues. They went so far as to ask for gross and net revenues on the order form so rates can be calculated. Their thinking was that there is no business without a phone, so they deserve a cut.

iBiquity is no different. The HD 1 stream is a simulcast of the analog channel, there is no HD audio without iBiquity, so they take a cut of revenues.

Mark, TT is first rate on service. on a trip south, i dropped off a 340, my oldest son talked me out of. just wanted a tune up/ check it over,

maybe bring the old girl up to factory specs. 2 weeks later, i stopped on the way back for pick-up. they not only cleaned it, brought it/alined to factory specs, they up dated the software. the price was under $50.00. i was floored. great service. now, if they had only got the RX-350 right the first time. and, on another note, Harris is cool. never used their service, but for a big buck, gov. type company, they are great phone wise. got a RF-590H i use for ALE. it's like 10 maybe 12 years old. i had questions, they treated me like i just spent $15K for a new receiver. all i can say is good people.

Here's another - these complaints are not available to the General Public - I wonder, why?

"I-Bust or H-Doomed"

"In these trying times, it should be pointed out that in most cases adding IBOC dramatically increases electric bills. I did three build-outs in Indianapolis and it almost doubled the power bills for the transmitter sites. Multiply this across the board and it is untold thousands of dollars a day going up in heat. If IBOC carriers were turned off, a lot of jobs could be saved with that money."

Don't forget the costs of running this junk technology.

Once the commercials start, then it is just another commercial-laden ho-hum competitor in a sea of commercial programs. Most of the stations that are adopting IBOC are having one helluva time getting listeners on their main channel. Why will they do better attracting listeners to a grungy HD-X channel? And if they can, why don't they put that killer program on their main channel and make some real money?

First, we don't do jukebox in a closet formats at our stations. That isn't what we do. We serve listeners. We do need to have real program-production facilities. Second, I don't personally believe that "long term" and iBiquity are compatible concepts. Third, going HD Radio means trashing audio quality both in the analog channel and in the multitude of HD-X channels. That's a "no sale" to us and at least a hard sell to most quality-conscious broadcasters. Fourth, the current crop of HD equipment is egregiously unreliable, and there is no expectation that the condition will improve in the foreseeable future. Don't take my word...ask any radio engineer who is responsible for a cluster of stations employing iBiquity's scheme. I personally know one engineer who got national attention for tossing all of the IBOC from his stations, AM and FM.

"Upping HD Radio signal strengths"

"The short math given what we know today is that it will cost roughly double on the transmission end to increase HD Radio FM power tenfold.
There are likely to be additional costs for cooling and air handling as well, in order to dissipate the excess energy required to get out another 10 dB in HD Radio signal. And, for some higher powered stations, existing HD Radio configurations may not be able to handle the power load, which could add to the cost and complexity of increasing HD Radio beyond its current power level... Also worth considering is existing transmitter combiner technology and whether or not it can support the added demands of increasing HD Radio broadcasts another 10 dB. If not, then it’s very likely that stations at the higher power levels will need to factor in a new antenna system that can support HD Radio, rather than piggyback onto their existing FM antenna system. At the higher powers, especially, an immediate 10 dB increase in HD Radio signal may be cost prohibitive... This will typically mean the addition of another similarly rated transmitter (using a combining technique) or the purchase of a new transmitter of roughly twice today’s power level."

Yup, take a look at the costs for the FM-HD power increase - with the major radio groups facing bankruptcy most won't be able to do it.

Nope. According to the NAB chairman, Apple will be adding an HD FM tuner to an upcoming iPod Nano. Microsoft has already added it to the Zune (though that may only bring in one or two new listeners!). The additional market is not coming just from listeners that would otherwise be listening to analog FM on their car radios. It's coming from listeners that would otherwise be listening to their iPod, CDs, or digital media (in the car or not in the car) because there's nothing on analog AM or FM that they want to listen to. HD radio is much more likely to be stealing customers from satellite radio than from analog FM.

You're not looking at the big picture.

It's because they have more information than you have.

So there's going to be more than 100 share in a market? Interesting.

That's really going to piss off Arbitron.

Then, again, what doesn't.

If "killer programming" is going to be available on HD, why not put it on analog FM now? Stations are languishing trying to gain market share because no one wants to listen to them. Why? Because they're not doing anything worth listening to. You don't need HD to put decent programming on the air!

Actually, most veterans of this industry agree that is the case.

I hate to tell you this, but that IS the big picture. Boiled down to residue, what we have here is some looney theory that broadcasters who can't lure listeners to a single channel will be able to lure listeners to many channels. What magic programming is going to cause this to happen? If such magical programming exists, why aren't they using it NOW?

No, actually it is because too many stations are more governed by emotion rather than sound business sense. I give the recent failure of KGNY as a prime example.

"Road-Testing the FMeXtra"

"In summary, FMeXtra is an economical and quick way for an FM station to add additional programming channels and to begin digital broadcasting. The system, which caught the attention of many attendees, requires the purchase of an $8,900 encoder that can be installed in less than an hour’s time, on average. There are no licensing fees to use the FMeXtra system."

http://www.rwonline.com/article/276

"FMeXtra: Another On-Channel Solution"

"Eventually DRE asked the NRSC to reactivate the DAB subcommittee. Early on, we saw that IBOC was going nowhere as long as there were multiple proponents, and even in the best estimates, it would be many years before there would be any return on investment. So we decided to license our patent portfolio for use in IBOC to USA Digital Radio, which eventually merged with Lucent’s IBOC group to form Ibiquity. We are an Ibiquity shareholder... There is no significant difference in spectrum occupancy between the 'extended hybrid' mode of IBOC today and these earlier systems, which were deemed by the NRSC and others to be incompatible with the host analog FM signal."

http://www.bext.com/RW/RWFMeXtraDec05.pdf

Makes one wonder, why FMeXtra was never used, but there seems to be some illegal, anti-competitive issues with the iBiquity/DRE/Vucast relationships.
